Eshelman & Sons Purchased By Albers Milling

H. R. Eshelman Jr., president of John W. Eshelman & Sons, Lancaster, Penn. and G. A. Ensminger, president of Albers Milling Company, a division of Carnation Company, Los Angeles, Calif., have jointly announced the sale of a major portion of Eshelman's feed milling assets to Albers.

The sale is subject to the approval of Eshelman's stockholders. If approved, the take-over date will be March 1, 1974.

Eshelman manufactures Red Rose feeds which are distributed by 1200 independent dealers in the northeast, middle Atlantic, and southern states and Ohio and Michigan.

Included in the transaction are five Eshelman mills located in York, Penn.; Circleville, Sanford, N.C.; Chamblee, Ga. and Tampa, Fla., and seven feed stores in Vermont, Connecticut, Pennsylvania, Ohio, Virginia, and West Virginia.

Ensminger stated, "The opportunity to acquire these mills and stores placed Albers in a most advantageous position to improve service to our specialty jobbers, dealers, and feeders in a 21-state area. It is our plan to work through our present Alber's distributors in the areas served by Eshelman, and at the same time we will maintain Eshelman's complete line of livestock, poultry and pet feeds to serve their present dealer organization."

H. R. Eshelman Jr. said, "This transaction will provide the Eshelman division of Carnation-Albers with the backing and guidance of a large, well-organized company who will continue our name and product line, provide capital for increased production facilities at several mills, and provide our customers with nationally known specialty items. We are pleased to place this feed business in their capable hands."

John W. Eshelman & Sons established their feed mill in Circleville in 1929. The operation was formerly owned by Heffner Milling Co.

D. J. Carpenter, general manager, has been at the Circleville plant since it was started 45 years ago. The first general manager of the mill was Robert D. Musser who was a great grandson of the founder of the Eshelman Firm. After the death of Mr. Musser in 1946, H. R. Eshelman Jr., also a great grandson of the founder, became general manager. He served in this capacity until 1956 when he transferred to the Lancaster, Pa., offices as a vice president of the company. He subsequently became president. Mr. Carpenter succeeded Mr. Eshelman as general manager.

John W. Eshelman founded the business April 1, 1842 when he started grinding grains and making feed for his neighbors and friends in a mill located near Lancaster, Pa.

When the founder died in 1863 his 18-year-old son, the second John W. Eshelman (1844-1931), took charge of the business.

The Red Rose, chosen as the trademark for Eshelman Feeds, was the symbol of the English House of Lancaster during the War of Roses. Lancaster, England, and consequently adopted the designation, "The Red Rose City".

During more than a century of existence, the firm has passed through every phase of the milling and feed business.

Probability of precipitation, 20 per cent today and 10 per cent tonight and tomorrow. Temperatures Wednesday were: high, 56; low, 41.

Vows Not To Resign

WASHINGTON (AP) — Vowing never to resign, President Nixon has given a qualified pledge in his State of the Union address to cooperate with House impeachment investigators.

Nixon's promise came in a dramatic finale to the Wednesday night speech delivered to a packed joint session of Congress and to millions listening and watching across the nation.

But he said his cooperation would have to be tempered by his presidential responsibilities, a remark that drew skeptical comments from some Democrats.

Declaring that "one year of Watergate is enough," Nixon called on the Democratic-controlled Congress to join him in making 1974 "a year of unprecedented progress" in accomplishing a 10-point agenda of national goals.

He called for action to "break the back of the energy crisis" and said he was sending Congress major proposals in the fields of health insurance and welfare reform.

He promised action to safeguard personal privacy, a proposal that produced audible snickers from some Democratic lawmakers. He said Arab leaders will meet soon to consider lifting their oil embargo and he disclosed his proposed federal budget would total $304.4 billion, with increased defense spending but no new taxes.

Nixon drew one of his biggest cheers of the night when he declared that a lasting peace is "the chief legacy I hope to leave from the eight years of my presidency."

He combined revisions of previous proposals and some new ones in the 10-point program, which he called "an agenda of truly significant progress."

It also included a pledge there will be no recession, continued efforts towards "a just and lasting settlement in the Middle East, continued efforts towards his goal of American self-sufficiency in energy by 1980, decentralization of government, increased transportation aid to communities and reform of the federal educational aid system.

Although most of the 30 interruptions for applause came from the Republican side of the House chamber, GOP and Democratic lawmakers joined later in hailing Nixon's goals, while generally splitting along partisan lines over Watergate.

Senate Republican Leader Hugh Scott of Pennsylvania said Nixon was frank in addressing Watergate and "I particularly liked his offer to cooperate with the House Judiciary Committee."

That panel's chairman, Rep. Peter W. Rodino Jr., D-N.J., said he interpreted Nixon's offer to cooperate consistent with his presidential responsibilities as meaning cooperation with limitations.

Sen. Philip A. Hart, D-Mich., said Nixon seemed to be saying "I will cooperate with the committee of impeachment the way I've cooperated with other committees. Those materials I want you to have, I'll give you."

Nixon launched his Watergate remarks, delivered without a text, after it appeared he had finished his speech. He declared he wanted to end on a personal note.

Stating he had cooperated with the Watergate special prosecutor, Nixon said "the time has come" to end that and other investigations.

When he asserted that "one year of Watergate is enough," virtually every Republican in the chamber rose to his feet, and most applauded vigorously.

Sen. Edward W. Brooke, R-Mass., who has urged Nixon to resign, stayed seated.

Noting the House Judiciary Committee probe, he said: "I want to indicate on this occasion that I will cooperate with the Judiciary Committee in its investigation."

"I will cooperate so it can conclude its investigation, make its decision, and I will cooperate in any way that I consider consistent with my responsibilities for the office of the presidency of the United States," he added.

He said he will follow the precedent of past presidents "of never doing anything that weakens the Office of the President of the United States or impairs the ability of the presidents of the future to make the great decisions that are so essential to this nation and the world."

Noting he had been elected President "for the purpose of doing a job and doing it as well as I possibly can," he said "I want you to know that I have no intention whatever of ever walking away from the job that the people elected me to do for the people of the United States."

Services Saturday For Patrolman Neff

Funeral Services for State Highway Patrolman Jerry R. Neff, 27, 335 Meadow Drive, will be 10:30 a.m. Saturday at the First Baptist Church with Gerald Stemm, Minister, officiating.

Burial will be at Forest Cemetery. Pallbearers and honor guard will be members of the Ohio Highway Patrol.

Patrolman Neff died at 10:03 Wednesday morning of massive head and internal injuries at Mt. Carmel Hospital, Columbus. He had been fatally injured in a freak automobile accident shortly after 9 a.m.

In honor of Patrolman Neff, flags at the Pickaway County Court House, Sheriff's Department, City Building and Highway Patrol posts throughout the state will fly at half mast.

Born June 5, 1946 at Mt. Sterling, Patrolman Neff was the son of Harold and Elizabeth Riggan Neff.

A native of Circleville, he graduated from high school here and attended Andrew's Barber College, where he later became an instructor. He served six years in the Army National Guard.

He had been a Patrol officer since graduating in 1971 as a member of the 90th Academy Class. He had been stationed at Circleville since that time.

He is survived by his widow, Brenda Downing Neff; three sons, Jason, Tyler and Kyle, all of the home; his father, Harold, Route 3; one brother, Randy, Route 3; three sisters, Mrs. Gene (Carol) Rase, 218 Sherwood Drive; Mrs. Danny (Ellen) Robinson, Route 3; Miss Cheryl Neff, Route 3; maternal grandmother, Mrs. Blanche Riggan, Route 1.

PATROLMAN JERRY R. NEFF

Friends may call at the Wellman Funeral Home beginning 7 p.m. Thursday.

David Richardson, 19, Columbus, was charged yesterday afternoon with aggravated vehicular homicide in connection with the accident. He was also charged with driving a stolen motor vehicle and reckless operation. Authorities said the car Richardson was driving had been stolen in Lexington, Ky. approximately two hours prior to the accident.

John R. Day, 20, Columbus, was a passenger in the Richardson auto but fled after he had called an ambulance. Richardson had advised Circleville Patrolman Larry Gilbert who arrived on the scene that he had a passenger with him at the time of the accident. The patrolman alerted all area hospitals to be on the lookout for a man seeking treatment for injuries.

Day was apprehended at Doctor's Hospital West later when he reported there for injuries he claimed he had received in a go-kart accident. Day was charged with auto larceny.

The accident occurred when Richardson, driving northbound on I-71, crashed through the guardrail and became airborne landing on top of Patrolman Neff's cruiser. Neff was on routine patrol and was traveling on U. S. Route 62 which crosses under the freeway.

As emergency personnel worked to free Neff from the wreckage where he was pinned for some time, the patrol radioed ahead to Mt. Carmel Hospital, Columbus, advising of his injuries.

Richardson sustained a laceration on the nose and cut on the right arm. He was listed in good condition at Mt. Carmel Hospital and was later released to the Highway Patrol. Both he and Day were placed in the Columbus City Prison under bond.

City Firemen Present Proposals To Council

Members of the Circleville Fire Department Wednesday submitted a list of proposals to the city calling for increased wages, cost of living adjustment, a paid hospitalization plan, more holidays and vacation.

Dale Edwards, acting as spokesman for the fire department told council it was the same list of proposals they presented last June when the city began working on the statutory budget.

The fire department is asking specifically for a $100 per month across the board increase for all members and for the city to pay all of the employees and family share of hospitalization.

City council members had proposed a three per cent wage increase and for the city to pay all of the employees share of hospitalization but not the family share.

In addition to the wage and insurance package, the firemen are seeking ten paid holidays. They presently get three. They are asking the overtime rate for firemen be based on 40 hours per week rather than 56 hours per week with a 4-hour call-in provision.

They included in the proposals one that will increase vacation time to three weeks after seven years and four weeks after 13 years. The firemen also ask that a $150 clothing allowance be paid each employee on January 1 of each year.

Edwards emphasized that firemen were anxious to negotiate proposals and counter-proposals with the city.

During the discussion, firemen also stated they were not pleased with the way they are required to take their holidays and vacations.

They told council that Fire Chief Bernard Wolfe told them effective this year they are required to take their three holidays all at one time and their vacation at one time rather than being permitted to split it as they have been allowed to do.

Council directed Safety Director Ed Ebert to discuss these rulings with Chief Wolfe, telling the firemen that was not within their jurisdiction.

Richard K. Muhleman, vice president, Fifth District, Ohio

Association of Professional Fire Fighters, spoke on behalf of the local members. He said the members of the department were asking council to negotiate proposals and said that each side would have to give a little before an equitable agreement could be reached.

Councilman Ben Gordon told firemen he did not believe their proposals unreasonable but questioned if the money could be found to meet them.

Joseph Bell, council president, explained that all city employees must be considered when wage increases are studied by members of council. He voiced the opinion that part of the firemen's requests appeared to be unreasonable when considered with salaries and fringe benefits of other departments.

Here is the present wage scale for members of the fire department:

Firemen: $6,803 starting pay; $6,912, one year; $7,022, two years; $7,132, three years; $7,351, six years; $7,571, nine years; $7,790, 12 years; $8,010, 15 years; $8,229, 20 years.

Lieutenants: $7,461, starting pay; $7,790, three years; $8,119, six years; $8,448, nine years; $8,778, 12 years; $9,107, 15 years; $9,436, 20 years.

Chief: $8,778, starting pay; $9,216, three years; $9,655, six years; $10,094, nine years; $10,533, 12 years; $10,972, 15 years; $11,411, 20 years.

There are 14 members on the department which is presently one short of authorized strength. Chief Wolfe has over 25 years of service with the department. Lt. Glenn Jones has been with the department 18 years and Martin Garner 16 years. These men have the most seniority.

Council appropriated $124,371.48 for salaries in the fire department at the beginning of the year, but if an increase is granted, will have to find additional money to appropriate.

Members of Council present were: Bell, Gordon, David Goldschmidt, David Crawford, Dixie Watters, Tom Wells and Harold Hoffman.

Power Lines, Siting Eyed By Ohio Solons

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Ohio power companies would have to place high tension lines beneath the ground under legislation slated for introduction today in the Ohio House.

Reps. Donna Pope, R-12 Parma, and George Mastics, R-3 Fairview Park, are authors of the bill which also would do away with the two-year-old Ohio Power Siting Commission.

That fledgling agency already has been beset with problems with powers the legislature gave it to approve the sites of new power plants and location of their transmission wires.

Mrs. Pope noted that the commission was designed to cut through red tape, but asserted that instead, "it is just another bureaucracy that removes local control." She said the local citizen no longer has any say with regard to utility company plans. "This must be changed," she said.

Mastics pointed to the "high profits" of the utility companies and maintained they "can well afford it... local communities should be able to pass legislation requiring that high tension wires be placed underground."

In other legislative developments, the House Select Committee on Energy opened hearings Wednesday night on Gov. John J. Gilligan's emergency bill to establish a state emergency energy board and authorize other actions to deal with the energy crisis.

Minority Republicans, whose votes are needed to pass the bill as an immediately-effective emergency act, indicated they will oppose features of the bill which they assert gives the governor too much power.

Both chambers held routine floor sessions except that Rep. Joseph P. Tulley, R-59 Mentor, and other conservatives led a successful attack against a bill that would let the state take title to lands assessed at $350 or less when their tax bills went unpaid for two years or longer. The vote was 44-50, and it was the first defeat of a bill by either house since the session started Jan. 2.

Rep. Marcus A. Roberto, D-62 Ravenna, was House sponsor of the Senate-passed measure which was designed, he said, to alleviate administrative requirements and cut down long lists of tax delinquent lands. The same bill in revised form floundered in the House last year.

With Rep. John P. Wargo, D-2 Lisbon, casting the only dissenting vote, the House sent to the Senate by a 91-1 vote a measure to beef up Ohio's law against the making of moonshine whisky. The bill specifically prohibits the possession of mash and equipment used to distill illegal booze.

Rep. Thomas J. Carney, D-71 Youngstown, sponsored the measure. He said the state needs it to increase its enforcement powers in the wake of a new policy that de-emphasizes efforts of federal agents to hunt down and arrest moonshiners.

Carney said the manufacture of moonshine in Ohio costs the state "thousands of dollars every year" in lost tax revenues.

The House approved 90-3 a bill that deletes from the law a requirement that law enforcement vehicles must be equipped with blue flasher lights. Sponsoring Rep. Kenneth R. Cox, D-41 Barberton, cited the testimony of officers who appeared in committee and stated that the blue lights "are not as visible" as red.

In addition to permitting use of red lights on law enforcement vehicles, the legislation mandates the use of red on emergency vehicles and requires amber colored lights on service vehicles, Cox explained.

Among six new bills introduced in the House were proposals to allow Sunday hunting on public lands, exempt Ohioans 60 or older from the

Reps. Donna Pope, R-12 Parma, and George Mastics, R-3 Fairview Park, are authors of the bill which also would do away with the two-year-old Ohio Power Siting Commission.

That fledgling agency already has been beset with problems with powers the legislature gave it to approve the sites of new power plants and location of their transmission wires.

Mrs. Pope noted that the commission was designed to cut through red tape, but asserted that instead, "it is just another bureaucracy that removes local control." She said the local citizen no longer has any say with regard to utility company plans. "This must be changed," she said.

Mastics pointed to the "high profits" of the utility companies and maintained they "can well afford it . . . local communities should be able to pass legislation requiring that high tension wires be placed underground."

In other legislative developments, the House Select Committee on Energy opened hearings Wednesday night on Gov. John J. Gilligan's emergency bill to establish a state emergency energy board and authorize other actions to deal with the energy crisis.

Minority Republicans, whose votes are needed to pass the bill as an immediately-effective emergency act, indicated they will oppose features of the bill which they assert gives the governor too much power.

Both chambers held routine floor sessions except that Rep. Joseph P. Tulley, R-59 Mentor, and other conservatives led a successful attack against a bill that would let the state take title to lands assessed at $350 or less when their tax bills went unpaid for two years or longer. The vote was 44-50, and it was the first defeat of a bill by either house since the session started Jan. 2.

Rep. Marcus A. Roberto, D-62 Ravenna, was House sponsor of the Senate-passed measure which was designed, he said, to alleviate administrative requirements and cut down long lists of tax delinquent lands. The same bill in revised form floundered in the House last year.

With Rep. John P. Wargo, D-2 Lisbon, casting the only dissenting vote, the House sent to the Senate by a 91-1 vote a measure to beef up Ohio's law against the making of moonshine whisky. The bill specifically prohibits the possession of mash and equipment used to distill illegal booze.

Rep. Thomas J. Carney, D-71 Youngstown, sponsored the measure. He said the state needs it to increase its enforcement powers in the wake of a new policy that de-emphasizes efforts of federal agents to hunt down and arrest moonshiners.

Carney said the manufacture of moonshine in Ohio costs the state "thousands of dollars every year" in lost tax revenues.

The House approved 90-3 a bill that deletes from the law a requirement that law enforcement vehicles must be equipped with blue flasher lights. Sponsoring Rep. Kenneth R. Cox, D-41 Barberton, cited the testimony of officers who appeared in committee and stated that the blue lights "are not as visible" as red.

In addition to permitting use of red lights on law enforcement vehicles, the legislation mandates the use of red on emergency vehicles and requires amber colored lights on service vehicles, Cox explained.

Among six new bills introduced in the House were proposals to allow Sunday hunting on public lands, exempt Ohioans 60 or older from the sales tax, and prohibit discrimination in the sale of gasoline.

The Senate, in other developments, approved without dissent bills increasing the amount the executor of an estate can pay for the funeral of the decedent from $500 to $800, and hiking the amount that can be charged for assessing large estates.

Sen. Paul R. Matia, R-25 Westlake, said the cost of assessments last year in Cuyahoga County fell $1.5 million short, and had to be taken from the county's general fund.

Among new Senate proposals was a bill doing away with the requirement for signatures on candidates' nominating petitions to be notarized. Senate Minority Leader Anthony O. Calabrese, D-22 Cleveland, offered a resolution that calls on Congress to repeal the new federal statute that put Ohio and most of the nation on Daylight Savings Time Jan. 6.

Markets

NEW YORK (AP) — The stock market was mixed today, retreating from mild early gains.

The Dow Jones average of 30 industrials, up over 3 points earlier, was down 2.16 at 860.16 at noon. Advances led declines on the New York Stock Exchange, however, by 7 to 4.

Analysts said the market started retreating on a report from Lebanon that the Arab nations were not expected to lift their oil embargo in next month's meeting. In recent sessions, the market's moves have been closely tied with the fluctuations of Arab oil rumors.

Also, according to brokers, President Nixon's State of the Union message left investors lukewarm.

In the American Stock Exchange, the noon market-value index was up .12 at 97.62, while the NYSE composite index was unchanged at 51.88.

Where Speed Limits Same Drivers Still Moving Fast

By BILL O'SHEA
Associated Press Writer

Americans in the 23 states where speed limits haven't been lowered to 55 miles per hour are ignoring a presidential appeal to slow down voluntarily and save gas.

But an Associated Press road check of the 50 states also shows drivers are staying close to 55 m.p.h. in the states where the speeds have been reduced.

AP reporters took to the highways in every state and kept their speedometers at 55 m.p.h. In the 27 states with 55 m.p.h. limits they found most cars keeping to the limit. Some cars passed them but mostly at speeds under 60 m.p.h.

In states without lowered limits, drivers were still pushing hard on the gas pedal and zoomed past the reporters in large numbers.

The Emergency Highway Energy Conservation Act signed into law by the President on Jan. 2 provides for a cutoff of federal highway funds to those states failing to lower their speed limit to 55 m.p.h. or below by the beginning of March.

Many states plan to have the 55 m.p.h. limit in force by March to beat the federal deadline, but others still have legislation pending.

In Illinois where legislation is pending on reduced speeds, newsman Charles Chamberlain said it was an ordeal to drive the Northwest Tollway at 55 m.p.h. Trucks and cars whizzed past him.

"It was like living by the side of the road and watching the world go by. The most ignored sign on the road reads: 'Energy-saving speed, 50 miles an hour.'"

In the states with lowered speeds, state troopers and police agencies said they were enforcing the speed limit wherever the state's highway crews have changed the speed limit signs.

"You would have expected increased violations with the lower speed limits, but that hasn't been the case at all," said one New York State trooper.

A spokesman for the Georgia State Patrol says the 55 m.p.h. limit won't be enforced until it becomes law. "Then we plan to enforce it strictly," he said.

Hughes Wins Dismissal Of Charges

RENO, Nev. (AP) — A federal judge has dismissed an indictment against industrialist Howard Hughes and called the document the "worst criminal pleading I have ever encountered" in 36 years in the legal profession.

The indictment dismissed on Wednesday by U.S. District Judge Bruce Thompson alleged Hughes and four others conspired to lower the value of stock in an airline while Hughes was trying to buy the line — now Hughes Airwest — in 1968.

Thompson said it would be "a perversion of justice" to try the five men under the indictment.

He said the document should have been more specific. It contained duplicated charges and left room for speculation or interpretation as to what the offense actually was, he said.

U.S. Atty. DeVoe Heaton, who appeared shaken by the ruling and criticism, said he would seek a new indictment from the grand jury that returned the rejected one on Dec. 27.

Attorneys for Hughes and other defendants were jubilant.

Moses Lasky, representing Hughes, said he felt the ruling would have come even faster had the case involved someone of lesser prominence than the 68-year-old recluse billionaire.

Chaplains Day Observance To Be Sunday

The Hall-Adkins American Legion Post No. 134, Circleville, will observe Four Chaplains Sunday, beginning Religious Emphasis Week, proclaimed by Circleville Mayor Frank Barnhill.

Chaplain Asa Robison, Post No. 134, announced Legion officials and clergymen are planning programs in local churches for the observance of the 31st anniversary of the sinking of the DSS Dorchester and the herosim demonstrated by four valiant chaplains.

The World War II story concerns four men of God whose heroic efforts were credited with the saving of more than 200 lives.

The four chaplains, Alexander O. Goode, a Jewish rabbi; John P. Washington, Catholic; George L. Fox, Methodist; and Clarke V. Poling, Reformed Church of America, gave their life belts to American servicemen aboard the troop transport after it was torpedoed Feb. 3, 1943.

When the life preservers exhausted, the four chaplains removed their own life belts and gave them to four soldiers and then stood calmly on the sinking ship, their arms around another's shoulders and their heads bowed in prayer.

The American Legion, inspired by the heroic deed of these four men, each year marks the anniversary of their supreme sacrifice through special services and programs in the communities of the nation. This annual observance, as a part of the Legion's "Service To God and Country" program, helps to bring new emphasis to the religious aspects of the American heritage, and the need for continuing adherence to the basic religious concepts upon which America was founded.

Right To Privacy Measure Still Leaves Loopholes

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Nixon administration's privacy legislation harnesses federal and state crime files to specific legal restrictions for the first time.

But it leaves enough loopholes to stir opposition from critics demanding still tighter limits.

In his State of the Union address Wednesday night, Nixon promised an effort to establish "a new set of standards that respect the legitimate needs of society, but that also recognize personal privacy as a cardinal principle of American liberty."

It was a promise from an administration that has been accused of widespread invasions of privacy through wiretapping, bugging and burglary.

A key element of Nixon's privacy protection program is a bill drafted largely under the supervision of Elliot L. Richardson, the attorney general who resigned after refusing to fire special Watergate prosecutor Archibald Cox.

That bill, developed in the Justice Department and circulated among other Cabinet agencies, would restrict the distribution of crime records to law enforcement agencies except in specified circumstances.

The draft has not been made public and Nixon mentioned no details, but The Associated Press obtained access to a copy.

These are the some key features:

—The restrictions would apply to any criminal justice information system operated or funded by the federal government and any other system exchanging information with federally operated or financed systems. It would cover both computerized and manual systems.

—The legislation would add the strength of law to the present policy restricting the distribution of crime files to law enforcement agencies unless specifically authorized by federal or state law.

—The legislation would prohibit the distribution of arrest records for anything except law enforcement purposes if the individual were not convicted of the charge and if there were no pending prosecution. But the provision allows certain exceptions.

—The legislation would require that an individual's files be sealed from the normal distribution channels from five to seven years after his last troubles with the law.

—The legislation would impose a $10,000 fine and one year in prison as the maximum penalty for violators and would authorize civil damage suits. Current policy lacks any provision for such penalties.

Although the department proposal goes much further than current policy, it stops short of the restrictions demanded by critics in and out of Congress.

Among other things, the critics prefer much more limited distribution of arrest records unless accompanied by the disposition of the case.

Bicycles Stolen; Car Damaged

Two bicycle thefts and a case of vandalism, which occurred during the week, are being investigated by city police.

Shirley McKinley, 147 Fairview Ave., notified police that someone put sugar in the gas tank of her car while it was parked in front of her residence.

Eva Cockerham, 514 S. Pickaway St., reported the theft of a girl's bicycle from her backyard and Robert Foll, 301 N. Scioto St., reported the theft of a boy's bicycle from his backyard.

Pamphlets Given To School Students

Pickaway County Sheriff's Community Relations Bureau Deputy Bill Dountz visited Walnut Township School 9 a.m. Wednesday.

Dountz distributed safety pamphlets and Ohio History Quiz pamphlets to 541 students grades one through six.

A lecture on local government was presented by Deputy Dountz to the fifth grade students at Jackson Township school Wednesday afternoon.

The World War II story concerns four men of God whose heroic efforts were credited with the saving of more than 200 lives.

The four chaplains, Alexander O. Goode, a Jewish rabbi; John P. Washington, Catholic; George L. Fox, Methodist; and Clarke V. Poling, Reformed Church of America, gave their life belts to American servicemen aboard the troop transport after it was torpedoed Feb. 3, 1943.

When the life preservers exhausted, the four chaplains removed their own life belts and gave them to four soldiers and then stood calmly on the sinking ship, their arms around another's shoulders and their heads bowed in prayer.

The American Legion, inspired by the heroic deed of these four men, each year marks the anniversary of their supreme sacrifice through special services and programs in the communities of the nation. This annual observance, as a part of the Legion's "Service To God and Country" program, helps to bring new emphasis to the religious aspects of the American heritage, and the need for continuing adherence to the basic religious concepts upon which America was founded.

Right To Privacy Measure Still Leaves Loopholes

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Nixon administration's privacy legislation harnesses federal and state crime files to specific legal restrictions for the first time.

But it leaves enough loopholes to stir opposition from critics demanding still tighter limits.

In his State of the Union address Wednesday night, Nixon promised an effort to establish "a new set of standards that respect the legitimate needs of society, but that also recognize personal privacy as a cardinal principle of American liberty."

It was a promise from an administration that has been accused of widespread invasions of privacy through wiretapping, bugging and burglary.

A key element of Nixon's privacy protection program is a bill drafted largely under the supervision of Elliot L. Richardson, the attorney general who resigned after refusing to fire special Watergate prosecutor Archibald Cox.

That bill, developed in the Justice Department and circulated among other Cabinet agencies, would restrict the distribution of crime records to law enforcement agencies except in specified circumstances.

The draft has not been made public and Nixon mentioned no details, but The Associated Press obtained access to a copy.

These are the some key features:

—The restrictions would apply to any criminal justice information system operated or funded by the federal government and any other system exchanging information with federally operated or financed systems. It would cover both computerized and manual systems.

—The legislation would add the strength of law to the present policy restricting the distribution of crime files to law enforcement agencies unless specifically authorized by federal or state law.

—The legislation would prohibit the distribution of arrest records for anything except law enforcement purposes if the individual were not convicted of the charge and if there were no pending prosecution. But the provision allows certain exceptions.

—The legislation would require that an individual's files be sealed from the normal distribution channels from five to seven years after his last troubles with the law.

—The legislation would impose a $10,000 fine and one year in prison as the maximum penalty for violators and would authorize civil damage

Two Cited, One Injured In Accidents

Two persons were cited in separate accidents investigated by the Pickaway County Sheriff's Deputies Wednesday.

Roger D. Cornell, 19, Route 3, Orient, was cited by Deputy Kuhn for reckless operation when he was involved in a single-car accident 2:15 a.m. Wednesday.

Cornell was driving on Ballah Road when he went off the left berm into a field.

Twenty-seven-year-old Thomas P. Howland, Greenfield, was cited for failure-to-yield the right of way by Sheriff's Deputy Lawrence Holt and James Deal when he was involved in a car-truck accident 5:55 p.m. Wednesday.

Howland, driving a semi-truck, was southbound on State Route 104 stopped at the U.S. 22 and Route 104 intersection. Proceeding through the intersection he struck a car driven by John Alvin Cook, 24, Route 2.

Cook was treated and released at Berger Hospital for minor injuries.

Pamphlets Given To School Students

Pickaway County Sheriff's Community Relations Bureau Deputy Bill Dountz visited Walnut Township School 9 a.m. Wednesday.

Dountz distributed safety pamphlets and Ohio History Quiz pamphlets to 541 students grades one through six.

A lecture on local government was presented by Deputy Dountz to the fifth grade students at Jackson Township school Wednesday afternoon.

3 Fewer Cattle Reported Sold During 1973

WASHINGTON (AP)—Farmers sold 2.1 million fewer cattle to slaughter plants last year, a major factor for a 28 per cent boost in the cost of hamburger at supermarkets.

Over-all, says the Agriculture Department, production of red meat — including beef, pork, veal, lamb and mutton — was 6 per cent lower last year.

And the Bureau of Labor Statistics, which keeps track of hamburger and other food prices, says consumers wound up in December paying slightly more than $1 per pound for hamburger. A year ago, in January 1973, it averaged 78.2 cents.

Cattle sold for beef were tabulated Tuesday in a report by USDA on 1973 livestock slaughter. They totaled about 33.6 million head, down from 35.7 million in 1972.

As a result, the report showed, beef output declined 5 per cent. Veal, from young beef animals, plummeted 24 per cent; pork was down 7 per cent; and lamb and mutton was down 5 per cent.

Experts say there is little chance of hamburger and other beef cuts declining in retail price soon. The December all-cut price of beef was down slightly from November and the peaks of last August, but so were live cattle prices.

Since then, however, live cattle prices have jumped sharply to a recent peak in early January of about $51. This week they were still averaging around $48 per one hundred pounds.

Agriculture Department forecasters say more cattle will be heading to market later on and that prices of live animals will dip by June.

But middleman costs for processing and merchandising also have risen. Thus, for hamburger watchers, the $1 per pound last month may have been the best bargain for this winter.

The right whale's breeding area is protected by the Argentine government but each time they leave their southern feeding grounds they must evade the guns of whalers not bound by any pact.

Ag Department Seeks Top Aide

WASHINGTON (AP)—The Agriculture Department will be without an assistant secretary to oversee foreign affairs and domestic farm programs after today, at least until a replacement can be nominated and approved by Congress.

Assistant Secretary Carroll G. Brunthaver is leaving the job for research work and possibly duties thereafter in private business. Brunthaver, 41, moved to the post in mid-1972 following the resignation of Clarence D. Palmby.

Tony Hall Enters Race

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — A Dayton state senator who earlier withdrew as a candidate for secretary of state re-entered the race Wednesday and won the Democratic party's endorsement.

Sen. Tony P. Hall, D-6 Dayton, won the endorsement Wednesday night on the fifth ballot of the party executive committee.

Hall had withdrawn his name from speculation for the post several weeks ago. That led the party's screening committee to recommend Commerce Director Dennis Shaul for the post.

As the committee convened Wednesday night, however, Democratic Chairman William Lavelle said Shaul had withdrawn screening committee and unanimously recommended Hall. Shaul said he withdrew from consideration after talking with Hall earlier in the evening.

One of the reasons for five ballots was the requirement that a 60 per cent vote was needed for endorsement, party leaders said.

Cancer Campaign Said Unrealistic

WASHINGTON (AP) — James Dewey Watson, Nobel Prize-winning biologist, suggests that the massive federal campaign against cancer may be an "unrealistic pipe dream."

"You may ask whether a cause can ever be good enough to generate small worlds of selfless scientists where the common good is the overwhelming consideration and thoughts about priorities receive little attention," Watson said Tuesday night.

"In fact, don't we already have such an example in the recent 'Conquest of Cancer' legislation?

"It not only provides to cancer research resources unimaginable several years ago, but also tries to specify how dispassionate advisers can oversee its swift running."

Watson, one of those advisers as a member of the National Cancer Board, continued:

"I'm afraid, however, here again we have an unrealistic pipe dream and that in so far as we are dealing with the process of scientific discovery, the sociology of cancer research will not show any striking differences from other branches of science."

Congressional Pay Hike Rapped

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — While he favors higher pay for public officials to attract more qualified people, John Glenn said Wednesday this is not the time for Congress to approve salary increases for its members.

"At this critical period, Congress should set an example of leadership by reducing their demands just as other Americans are asked to do," said the former astronaut, a candidate for the Democratic nomination to the U.S. Senate.

President Nixon included pay hikes for congressmen and other public officials in his budget message.

biology at Harvard, shared the Nobel Prize for medicine and physiology in 1962 with two British biophysicists, Dr. Maurice H. P. Wilkins and Dr. Francis H.C. Crick.

They were honored for their discovery of the molecular structure of deoxyribonucleic acid, popularly called DNA, the substance of heredity.

Watson also wrote a popular layman's version of the discovery of the nature of DNA, "The Double Helix," published in 1968.

He spoke at the Smithsonian Institution in a series of lectures named for Frank Nelson Doubleday and sponsored by the publishing firm.

Watson, while critical of the current government approach to finding a cure for cancer, was not pessimistic about the scientific prospects for doing so.

"Even if we disregard the tons of lousy research being done and concentrate on the first-rate variety, which for the first time is beginning to roll out in large masses, we still must deal with the usual complicated mix of cooperation and competition," he said.

A Page Of Opinion

Federal Health Plan

Among the pile of last-minute legislation Congress dumped on the President's desk prior to leaving for the holidays was a health services bill which throws a large unknown into the medical treatment field. The bill is seen as a forerunner to the more extensive national health insurance proposals the administration has said it will present to Congress.

Basically the new law, called the Health Maintenance Organization Act of 1973, provides $375 million in funding for a subscription health service to be established at the local level. It will be a five-year experiment, perhaps involving as many as 500 communities.

The plan is for subscribers to pay a monthly or annual fee to the local organization for coverage of basic health services. It would appear to be in direct competition with private health insurance plans, but underwritten in part by federal funds.

About $50 million in the funding is earmarked for evaluating the results when the system begins operations. The number of local health maintenance units is to be divided between rural and urban communities. An additional requirement is that employers with more than 25 employees must offer the federal plan as an alternative to private plans available to employees.

In short, it is a long step in the direction of a national health plan. Whether it will work to improve the health of the nation is the $375 million question.

A Novel Twist

ON THE LINE
By BOB CONSIDINE

NEW YORK People ... Places ... The editors of Random House have rejected the outline of a novel which former Vice President Agnew is writing. It's about a future vice president whose downfall is programmed by Chinese Communists, roughly. Too roughly, said the editors.

But surely there are enough publishers around today to encourage Agnew, not in the interests of his redemption but with an eye on their "bottom line." Lots of people would buy a novel by the man who was programmed for for damnation but for the Presidency of the United States. No matter how much the book critics might pound it. In that respect, the books of Jacqueline Susann are generally clobbered by the critics, but they outsell everything published except the Bible and Thoughts of Mao.

Every living soul believes he has a novel in him, and Spiro's no exception. It is good to try to exorcise it, and return to sanity. But in Agnew's case, he would appear to have accepted some bad advice and bluntly, would be one of the major political documents of the century. And pay off that $200,000 to his lawyers.

It's a sign of the times that the former Veep may realize a capital gain on his nearly $200,000 home near Washington. It has been frequently mentioned as still another albatross around his already crowded neck. There's a huge mortgage on it. But now it's up for sale, and the asking price is more than $300,000.

The appreciation is traced to the extensive improvements on the place, including a widened driveway and redwood and brick wall-added by the Secret Service for "security."

But what a hell of a way to make a buck!

Names make news, Prof. Chase used to tell the football players and others of us on athletic scholarships at George Washington University's School of Journalism. That's about all I remember of the fine course. But a maverick streak sent me off on a tangent some years ago, the collection of real names that I find fascinating. Readers help me. Here's a batch of beatus sent in by Dr. Eleanor Fraser of Laguna Beach, California.

"As a radiologist, I come across many unusual names when reading X-rays," Dr. Fraser writes. "The name started me collecting, many years ago, was Schuyler Tinklepaugh."

"Here are some of my other favorites: Daisy Bonecutter, Boonrod Binson, Wambly Bald, J.C. Beaglehole, Cosy Crofoot, Polly Wanda Crocker, Noble Duden (I wonder if his brother's name is High?), Crystal Shan de Lear, Rudy

Business World

By JOHN CUNIFF
AP Business Analyst

NEW YORK (AP) — The drive for overseas markets by multinational corporations is forcing upon the world a host of decisions it has avoided for years.

The most basic of these concerns loyalty. To what country or countries does the multinational corporation owe allegiance? To that in which it is headquartered, or those countries in which it operates?

An example of the conflict that can arise was dramatized in recent weeks when the Exxon Corp., considered to be America's largest industrial company in terms of assets, cut oil supplies to American military forces. It did so, it seems, to satisfy the demand of its supplier, Saudi Arabia.

Glaring examples such as this are multiplied dozens of times in less dramatic ways.

The fact is that ground rules for doing business are sometimes absent in the multinational arena, leaving the world's industrial nations to operate in each other's markets on a problem-at-a-time basis.

The informality of these enormously valuable relationships was described last November by Thomas A. Murphy, General Motors vice chairman, in an address to the National Foreign Trade Conference.

Canada has rebelled against dictates from U.S. corporate headquarters. The Indonesians are angry at the Japanese. Congress still debates whether U.S. jobs are "exported" to foreign subsidiaries of multinationals.

Dear Editor:

I read with concern the "Letter to the Editor" by Mr. Ted Stoufer published January 25, 1974, on the water and sewage billings. Since we have been involved in these billings since July, 1973, I feel obligated to comment briefly on the change to computer billing. To ease the financial burden for customers of quarterly billings at the higher rates placed in effect on January 1, 1973, the decision was made by the city to go to monthly billings like most other utilities such as gas, electric, and telephone. Since monthly billings to 4,400 customers exceeded the capability of the billing equipment of the Utility Department, the City advertised for bidders for this service. We were the successful bidders in June to begin with July monthly billings.

The meters were to be read quarterly. Monthly billings were to be estimated based on past consumption for two months and bills based on actual readings sent to the customers the third month of the quarter with adjustment for the previous two estimated bills. This is not a difficult computer application.

However, doing it was not without problems. First, the system of meter readings used initially for computer billing was found to be impractical. This system was corrected. Next, shortly after the computer billings started, personnel both in Circleville and here changed and there were illnesses of key personnel. The information required on the bill was changed to give the customers more information. Billing schedules were missed because of this and many other debugging problems that arose.

Circleville Utility Department personnel and our personnel have spent many extra hours to resolve the problems and after the many difficulties of getting this system installed, we believe we have them solved. Zone 1 billing has been the farthest behind schedule, but Zone 1 and all billing is scheduled to be current and on schedule in February.

We regret the confusion and inconvenience this may have caused the citizens of Circleville and will work diligently to give fast, accurate and fair billings to all customers. We stand ready to assist the personnel of the Utility Department to answer any specific questions that Mr. Stoufer or any other customers may have.

Break Seen In Embargo

NEW YORK (AP) — The Wall Street Journal says there are initial indications of a break in the Arab oil embargo.

The newspaper said in a story in today's editions it learned that at least one United States oil company has been told it can expect a cargo of Saudi Arabian oil by late February.

According to the Journal, the oil for the unnamed American firm would be made available for delivery to a European port and subsequent transshipment to this country by Petromin, the government oil company of Saudi Arabia.

The Journal reported that some officials of large U.S. based firms operating in Saudi Arabia said they had not been advised of any changes in the embargo or other restrictions placed on production of the Western-owned Arabian American Oil Co.

The newspaper said there were reports circulating in the oil industry that some production restrictions already have been eased in some Arab countries such as Kuwait.

The Journal quoted one major U.S. buyer of overseas oil as saying: "Tremendous quantities of oil suddenly have come into the market place — oil we didn't even know existed 10 days ago."

A Page Of Opinion

Federal Health Plan

Among the pile of last-minute legislation Congress dumped on the President's desk prior to leaving for the holidays was a health services bill which throws a large unknown into the medical treatment field. The bill is seen as a forerunner to the more extensive national health insurance proposals the administration has said it will present to Congress.

Basically the new law, called the Health Maintenance Organization Act of 1973, provides $375 million in funding for a subscription health service to be established at the local level. It will be a five-year experiment, perhaps involving as many as 500 communities.

The plan is for subscribers to pay a monthly or annual fee to the local organization for coverage of basic health services. It would appear to be in direct competition with private health insurance plans, but underwritten in part by federal funds.

About $50 million in the funding is earmarked for evaluating the results when the system begins operations. The number of local health maintenance units is to be divided between rural and urban communities. An additional requirement is that employers with more than 25 employees must offer the federal plan as an alternative to private plans available to employees.

In short, it is a long step in the direction of a national health plan. Whether it will work to improve the health of the nation is the $375 million question.

A Novel Twist

ON THE LINE
By BOB CONSIDINE

NEW YORK People... Places...

The editors of Random House have rejected the outline of a novel which former Vice President Agnew is writing. It's about a future vice president whose downfall is programmed by Chinese Communists, roughly. Too roughly, said the editors.

But surely there are enough publishers around today to encourage Agnew, not in the interests of his redemption but with an eye on their "bottom line." Lots of people would buy a novel by the man who was programmed for for damnation but for the Presidency of the United States. No matter how much the book critics might pound it. In that respect, the books of Jacqueline Susann are generally clobbered by the critics, but they outsell everything published except the Bible and Thoughts of Mao.

Every living soul believes he has a novel in him, and Spiro's no exception. It is good to try to exercise it, and return to sanity. But in Agnew's case, he would appear to have accepted some bad advice and bluntly, would be one of the major political documents of the century. And pay off that $200,000 to his lawyers.

It's a sign of the times that the former Veep may realize a capital gain on his nearly $200,000 home near Washington. It has been frequently mentioned as still another albatross around his already crowded neck. There's a huge mortgage on it. But now it's up for sale, and the asking price is more than $300,000.

The appreciation is traced to the extensive improvements on the place, including a widened driveway and redwood and brick wall-added by the Secret Service for "security."

But what a hell of a way to make a buck!

Names make news, Prof. Chase used to tell the football players and others of us on athletic scholarships at George Washington University's School of Journalism. That's about all I remember of the fine course. But a maverick streak sent me off on a tangent some years ago, the collection of real names that I find fascinating. Readers help me. Here's a batch of beaus sent in by Dr. Eleanor Fraser of Laguna Beach, California.

"As a radiologist, I come across many unusual names when reading X-rays," Dr. Fraser writes. "The name started me collecting, many years ago, was Schuyler Tinklepaugh.

"Here are some of my other favorites: Daisy Bonecutter, Boonrod Binson, Wambly Bald, J.C. Beaglehole, Cosy Crofoot, Polly Wanda Crocker, Noble Dugden (I wonder if his brother's name is High?), Crystal Shan de Lear, Rudy

Dew, Selma Dingus, Comentine Dingleline, Elnora Fuggle, Felonius Fish, Zeldia Gunch, Heidi High, Herman Hinklebrackie, Hester Huskey, Hirschel Hoopengartner, Gladman C. Humbles, Karvin and Keetette Kuffer (both female), King Kong, Portia Klutzz, Iona Millon, Thurley Oliphant (female), Whynotta POSEY, Cherley L. Peebles, Pickney Pinchback, Delwyn C. Pooter, Felicitas Pfefferberger, Rosie Rotencroch, Cheryl Schmaltz, Bunny Howell Seidensticker, Easter Sledge, Sylvan Stool, M.D., Irvy Schloe, Sadie Schmeekle, Oral Suer, Dewey Sweat, Beulah Tooth, Karam Toadvine, Gladiola

Business World

By JOHN CUNIFF
AP Business Analyst

NEW YORK (AP) — The drive for overseas markets by multinational corporations is forcing upon the world a host of decisions it has avoided for years.

The most basic of these concerns loyalty. To what country or countries does the multinational corporation owe allegiance? To that in which it is headquartered, or those countries in which it operates?

An example of the conflict that can arise was dramatized in recent weeks when the Exxon Corp., considered to be America's largest industrial company in terms of assets, cut oil supplies to American military forces. It did so, it seems, to satisfy the demand of its supplier, Saudi Arabia.

Glaring examples such as this are multiplied dozens of times in less dramatic ways.

The fact is that ground rules for doing business are sometimes absent in the multinational arena, leaving the world's industrial nations to operate in each other's markets on a problem-at-a-time basis.

The informality of these enormously valuable relationships was described last November by Thomas A. Murphy, General Motors vice chairman, in an address to the National Foreign Trade Conference.

Explaining the cornerstone of GM's approach to good relations with its host countries, he commented:

"We at General Motors will continue to function as a good citizen in each country where we work. Our mission is to serve the people and the markets of every host country profitably by creating value and jobs."

He said that under the "guest philosophy," each subsidiary must adapt policies to the laws and customs and values of its host country.

While it also professed belief in a guest philosophy, International Telephone and Telegraph Co. clearly found it impossible to apply in Chile.

Canada has rebelled against dictates from U.S. corporate headquarters. The Indonesians are angry at the Japanese. Congress still debates whether U.S. jobs are "exported" to foreign subsidiaries of multinationals.

What are the rights of multinationals to close foreign operations and throw local residents out of work? Who should be the boss, a local or a foreign executive? Should raw materials be imported or purchased locally?

The problem has a dozen facets.

American Legion Auxiliary Conducts Dinner Meeting

A carry-in dinner preceded the business session of Unit 134 American Legion Auxiliary in the post home Monday evening.

Betty Sabine conducted the meeting which was opened with prayer

Projects Discussed By Auxiliary

Projects were discussed during the first meeting of the new year by Ladies Auxiliary of Clearcreek Twp. Fire Department at the firehouse.

Members repeated "The Lord's Prayer" to begin activities. It was agreed to postpone a decision to serve a consignment sale dinner until the February meeting and to have a Mother-Daughter banquet.

Mrs. Goble Branham was appointed to investigate the possibility of purchasing red stickers which are put on bedroom windows in homes where children or elderly people sleep to alert firemen in case of home fires.

Discussion was held concerning members purchasing jackets with auxiliary emblems.

Members present were: Mrs. Frank Harvey, Mrs. Faye Fausnaugh, Mrs. Gail Goldsberry, Mrs. Robert Harrison, Mrs. Ola Rife, Mrs. Ross Good, Mrs. Don Butterbaugh, Mrs. John Stebelton.

Mrs. Bill Martin and children, Mrs. Maynard Miller, Mrs. Paul Hartley and daughter, Mrs. Goble Branham, Mrs. Merle Justin and Mrs. James Lovett.

Refreshments were served by Mrs. Lovett. Mrs. Miriam Lynch will serve refreshments at the February meeting.

Pontious Church Class Organizes

Fifteen members attended the organizational meeting of Homemakers Class of Pontious United Methodist Church on Monday evening in the home of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Pritchard, Route 4.

Elected as officers for the first year were: Terry Thompson, president; Richard Burch, vice president; Mrs. Robert Clark, treasurer and Mrs. Don Wellington, secretary.

Plans were made for the coming year concerning projects and monthly meetings.

Devotions were opened with prayer by Doane Wiggins. Mrs. Pritchard gave several readings and the class sang "Glory To His Name" and "What A Friend." A quiz concerning women of the Bible was won by Mrs. Burch.

Refreshments were served by the hostess assisted by Mrs. Jeff Peters.

Girl Scout Troop Spends Weekend At Columbus COSI

Junior Girl Scout Troop 1051 took part in the council sponsored camp-in recently at Columbus Center of Science and Industry.

The girls took part in watching movies, exploring all corners of the museum, a song fest, eating, sleeping amongst the exhibits, and making crafts such as terrariums, candles, kites, cloud chambers, star charts, and studying their body by use of different measurement systems.

The girls also enjoyed the planetarium, transparent talking woman and visiting the realistic coal mine. The girls had a chance to become friends with 750 other girls attending this event.

Adults accompanying the girls were co-leaders Mrs. Donald Neff and Mrs. Larry Stant.

This month the troop is making quilts. Future plans include selling cookies, a valentine party, skating party, World Association Day and planning of a bike trip.

McPherson-Salyers Marriage Plans Are Announced

Ringgold United Methodist Church has been selected as the setting for the Feb. 2nd wedding of Miss Kathy McPherson and Philip Salyers.

The Rev. Don Makarius will perform the 2:30 p.m. ceremony for the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Norman McPherson, Route 1, Amanda and the son of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Salyers, Route 2, Ashville.

The tradition of open church will be observed.

Friends For Lunch
Seafood Salad, Walnut Cheese Crescents, Fruit Compote, Beverage. Walnut Cheese Crescents

A quick and savory hot bread. 8-ounce package refrigerated crescent dinner rolls
1 tablespoon butter or margarine
1/4 teaspoon onion powder
1/2 teaspoon dillweed
1/2 teaspoon paprika
1/4 cup grated Parmesan Cheese
1/2 cup chopped walnuts
Unroll dough; separate into 8 triangles. Melt butter and mix in seasonings; brush over dough; sprinkle with Parmesan and walnuts. Roll up each triangle from broad end toward point. Place, point side down, on ungreased cookie sheet, curving the ends slightly. Bake in a preheated 375-degree oven until golden-brown 10 to 13 minutes. Serve warm. Makes 8.

Family Dinner
Fish steaks, potatoes, snap beans, salad, Phyll's apple dessert.
Phyll's Apple Dessert

Inspired by a modern Kentucky recipe that's easy to make.
1/2 cup fine dry white or yellow cake crumbs
21-ounce can apple pie filling
1-3rd cup sugar
2 tablespoons lemon juice
3 tablespoons bourbon
1 tablespoon butter or margarine
Butter a deep glass pie plate (9 1/2 by 1 1/2 inches) or similar utensil; sprinkle bottom with half the crumbs. Mix together remaining ingredients except the butter and spread over bottom of pie plate; sprinkle with remaining crumbs; dot with butter. Bake, uncovered, in a preheated 350-degree oven until top is brown — 50 to 60 minutes. Serve warm with cream. Makes 6 servings.

by Cleo Caudill, chaplain. The Mid-Winter Conference of all Ohio units will be held Feb. 23rd-24th at the Neil House Motor Hotel in Columbus. Mrs. Nancy Sallot will open the 9 a.m. Saturday meeting which will honor hospital representatives and volunteers and the field service director and volunteers.

The auxiliary charter was draped in memorium to deceased member, Mrs. William Radcliff, by Mrs. Sabine and Mrs. Caudill.

Mary Stephens, rehabilitation and veterans affairs chairman, gave her report for December and January visits to Chillicothe Veterans Hospital. Several letters of appreciation from Richard L. Comstock, chief of voluntary services at the hospital, were read. He expressed appreciation for all the gifts including lap robes and ditty bags given to all new patients and the ward parties the unit has provided on a continuing basis for over 45 years. He feels the volunteers bridge the gap between the hospital and community and said without these visits the hospital would be a lonely place and patient's rehabilitation program incomplete.

Roseann Stinson, children and youth chairman, told of assistance to four widows with a total of 18 children and one disabled veteran with Christmas food baskets, clothing, boots, toys and other gifts.

Membership in the unit now totals 134 members (the number of the unit) and dues are payable to Mrs. David Valentine, Route 4.

Poppies made by veterans at the Ohio Soldiers and Sailors Home in Sandusky for the annual Poppy Day in May were ordered. The work helps the men keep busy during winter days when they cannot be outside and the money they receive enables them to buy little luxuries which they could not have otherwise.

Stenobe Stonerock was appointed co-chairman for the Poppy Sale with Betty Wallace to handle details for this important day which provides the funds for assistance to disabled veterans and their families and the monthly hospital visits.

The chaplain closed the meeting with prayer.

Ohio 'Heart Of Truck Industry'

CLEVELAND, Ohio (AP) — Ask George Rynn why the trucker protest has centered in Ohio and he'll tell you it's natural because "this is the heartbed of the trucking industry."

Rynn, president of the Akron-based Council of Independent Truckers, says Ohio and Pennsylvania have about one-third of the nation's estimated 100,000 independent owner-operators. Owner-operators make up about one-third of the nation's estimated 300,000 truck drivers.

And the independents are the ones staging the protest.

Cleveland is described as the third-largest industrial center in the United States. The nation's largest steelmakers have plants in Cleveland, Youngstown and Pittsburgh. Akron is home for four of the top five rubber companies, and one of them claims it started the trucking industry itself three years ago.

Ohio and western Pennsylvania highways were battlegrounds for 10,000 truckers' successful attempt to split away from the Teamsters Union in 1970. The result was FASH, the maverick Fraternal Association of Steel Haulers, but not before the Ohio National Guard was ordered into Akron during the heat of the struggle.

And Ohio is known among truckers nationwide as "the Gestapo State" because of what drivers consider to be harassing tactics by the Ohio Highway Patrol, Rynn and other drivers say. Rynn says the truckers blame Gov. John J. Gilligan. Gilligan and patrol spokesmen deny harassment.

Ohio and Pennsylvania drivers headed the blockades that disrupted traffic on major national highways in December in protest of the same issues over which drivers now are parking and locking their rigs. The truckers demand lower fuel prices, a ceiling of 37.9 cents per gallon, increased freight rates and other steps to ease their profit pinch.

The Ohio National Guard was called to help the highway patrol break up trucker roadblocks Dec. 5-7 near Columbus and Cleveland. The Cleveland blockade lasted 36 hours, the longest in the nation, and involved 1,400 rigs by officials' count from planes overhead.

"Akron has always been the leading trucking city in the world in terms of tons of freight hauled," Rynn says, adding that he had no figures at hand.

He says the council represents independent trucker organizations in 42 states and includes at least 22,000 drivers.

"The main gripe about the state of Ohio is the number of weighing stations," Rynn says. He says rigs may be weighed four times during one trip across the state.

He also says drivers may be stopped by three state agencies and two federal agencies in a single trip, for safety checks and examination of permits or logs of their hours. Federal rules limit drivers to 10 hours at the wheel in one day.

"It not only causes us to lose time but it's also a waste of fuel," Rynn says fuel and time mean money and meals for truckers and their families.

FASH, based in Pittsburgh, supports the shutdown. A FASH regional representative in Youngstown, asked why Ohio drivers were the protests' key backers, answered simply: "Because it all started here."

Tires Make Fishing Reefs

AKRON, Ohio (AP) — More than a half-million scrap tires were banded into bundles and dropped in the ocean this year to build artificial reefs off the nation's coasts, according to the Goodyear Tire & Rubber Co., which provided scrap tires and tire compacting machinery for the projects.

The reefs are now providing havens for numerous species of fish.

Skylab Astronauts Slate

Big Earth Resources Survey

SPACE CENTER, Houston (AP) — The Skylab astronauts are preparing for the longest earth resources survey of the Skylab program, a 27,000-mile pass completely around the globe.

Astronauts Gerald P. Carr, William R. Pogue and Edward G. Gibson have also scheduled a news conference from space today and they expect to receive a go-ahead to complete the final week of their marathon journey.

Skylab Program Director William C. Schneider will make the go-no-go decision for the last seven days after a day-long review of the conditions of the crew and the space station.

Flight Director Donald Puddy said Wednesday the decision will be Schneider's, but "based on what I heard from the crew today and the spacecraft condition, I don't see any reason why it won't be go."

During the last month of the 84-day flight Schneider has been giving the go-ahead on a weekly basis.

The Skylab crew is heading for return to earth and splashdown in the Pacific Ocean at 11:17 a.m. EDT Feb. 8.

During the 30-minute afternoon news conference, part of which will be televised to Mission Control, the astronauts will answer questions from newsmen at the space center. They are expected to cover a wide range of subjects, from their assessment of Skylab to their predictions about the future of manned space flight.

A major goal of the earth resources pass is to obtain an accurate measurement of the shape of the world in the area to be covered, including the continental United States.

Today, population is about eight times that of 1850 and world production is 35 times higher.

Nice Weather Halts Carnival At Ravenna

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — The Natural Resources Department's annual Winter Sports Carnival near Ravenna Feb. 23 has been postponed because of nice weather. The event has been reset for March 2-3.

The department explained that not enough snow has fallen in recent weeks for sledding, ice skating and snowmobiling, traditional activities of the carnival.

Ohio 'Heart Of Truck Industry'

CLEVELAND, Ohio (AP) — Ask George Rynn why the trucker protest has centered in Ohio and he'll tell you it's natural because "this is the heart-bed of the trucking industry."

Schoolchildren Get Thanks From Nixon For Support

NEWPORT, Ky. (AP) — "They were thrilled to death...overjoyed," said Newport elementary school teacher Steve Schwein.

His class of sixth graders received a call from President Nixon's press secretary, Ron Ziegler, late Wednesday night thanking them for a gift tie clasp and cuff links worn by the President during his State of the Union address.

Schwein's 30 students sent President Nixon the tie clasp and cuff links with a letter urging him to wear the gifts "as a sign you believe in Americans."

The northern Kentucky youngsters said in their handwritten note they hoped the President would ride out the Watergate controversy.

"We know you can work this out," the letter said. "Our teacher gives us a second chance. So we think the Americans should give you a second chance."

The tie clasp had an American flag on it, Schwein said.

Ziegler told the students, who gathered at the school for the evening address, that President Nixon "had them very much in mind."

Ziegler said the President "was proud of them all."

AT BOOKS IN THE CHILDREN'S LIBRARY

The addition of several bright new books for early readers should encourage learning. Robert McClung cares deeply about animals whose survival is threatened. "Black Jack, Last of the Big Alligators" follows a baby alligator from his first appearance outside the egg until his maturity. His struggle to avoid capture will arouse the sympathy of children.

"Shag, Last of the Plains Buffalo" depicts the struggle of the buffalo in the remote wilderness of Yellowstone. The struggle of the Eastern panther may have been hopeless. In "Screamer, Last of the Eastern Panthers" we learn that the existence of this predator is questioned nowadays by naturalists.

A different adventure is "Buzztail, the Story of a Rattlesnake". The author recounts various episodes in a rattlesnake's experience including his

Lights Dim In California

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — California will be a bit darker tonight. Billboard lights will go off earlier, parking lot flood lighting will be cut in half, outdoor events will use less electricity and businesses will dim afterhours indoor lighting.

Commercial and industrial firms must also reduce heating and air conditioning. It's all the result of a Jan. 3 order by the State Public Utilities Commission requiring mandatory curtailment of electric use by certain customer groups. The commission aims to reduce power consumption by at least 15 per cent.

Private utilities under the commission's jurisdiction were given 27 days to file new tariffs incorporating the order. A tariff, which requires the commission's approval, outlines regulations governing service to be provided and rates to be charged. It also contains a provision on handling of customers who refuse to comply with the rules.

Sneek-A-Peek

AT BOOKS IN THE CHILDREN'S LIBRARY

The addition of several bright new books for early readers should encourage learning. Robert McClung cares deeply about animals whose survival is threatened. "Black Jack, Last of the Big Alligators" follows a baby alligator from his first appearance outside the egg until his maturity. His struggle to avoid capture will arouse the sympathy of children.

"Shag, Last of the Plains Buffalo" depicts the struggle of the buffalo in the remote wilderness of Yellowstone. The struggle of the Eastern panther may have been hopeless. In "Screamer, Last of the Eastern Panthers" we learn that the existence of this predator is questioned nowadays by naturalists.

A different adventure is "Buzztail, the Story of a Rattlesnake". The author recounts various episodes in a rattlesnake's experience including his striking a threatening boy. "Bufo, The Story of A Toad" relates how this creature escapes death. Playing dead and at the same time releasing a vile tasting fluid, he often survives attacks.

There is something precious in the early experiences of children and animals. Arnold Dobrin has written about "Jillions of Gerbils". Poor David keeps losing his gerbils. And when they are found they have a surprise of their own. In "His Majesty the Frog" by Mary Jane Roth, Anna Belle dreams that she can change a frog into a prince. And, in "Steve's First Pony Ride" by Leonard Shortall, Steve leaves the gate open and But-terball escapes. Also by Shortall is "Tony's First Dive", a story of a boy's brave efforts to explore under the water.

Fans of Dorrie, the good little witch, will be delighted with three new books. "Dorrie and the Fortune Teller", "Dorrie and the Witch Doctor" and "Dorrie and the Blue Witch." And another of Radlauer's photographic chronicles of sports for the youngest readers has arrived. It is titled "Soap Box Racing." Two new books of phantasy are waiting for lovers of monsters. "Quiet on Account of Dinosaurs" is by Jane Thayer and "Let's Catch a Monster" is by Ann Herbert Scott.

A look at the Indian's weapons is authentic when written by Robert Hofsinde (Gray-Wolf) in "Indian Warriors and Their Weapons." An Indian would dig out an entire tree, trim only the longest roots, allow it to dry out and have a club for face to face combat. "Sign Language" by the same author describes with pictures their unique form of communication. When Indians from different tribes met they used the universal sign language. They could count into the hundreds by this method.

Sonia Bleeker, an anthropologist who has devoted years to the study of Indian tribes writes engagingly of the daily life in "The Aztecs". We can watch tortillas or corn pancakes, the staple food, being prepared. And when a child misbehaves he has his hand pricked with a maguery thorn. Shy girls were much admired by the Indians of the Northwest coast, "The Sea Hunters," another book by Bleeker. When ready to enter womanhood the girl lived in a small compartment with her eyes lowered for five to ten days to develop her shyness. All the simple ways of the Indian have disappeared, but thanks to gifted writers their customs will be remembered.

Schoolchildren Get Thanks From Nixon For Support

NEWPORT, Ky. (AP) — "They were thrilled to death...overjoyed," said Newport elementary school teacher Steve Schwein.

His class of sixth graders received a call from President Nixon's press secretary, Ron Ziegler, late Wednesday night thanking them for a gift tie clasp and cuff links worn by the President during his State of the Union address.

Schwein's 30 students sent President Nixon the tie clasp and cuff links with a letter urging him to wear the gifts "as a sign you believe in Americans."

The northern Kentucky youngsters said in their handwritten note they hoped the President would ride out the Watergate controversy.

"We know you can work this out," the letter said. "Our teacher gives us a second chance. So we think the Americans should give you a second chance."

The tie clasp had an American flag on it, Schwein said.

Ziegler told the students, who gathered at the school for the evening address, that President Nixon "had them very much in mind."

Ziegler said the President "was proud of them all."

Commuter Trains Fight Bigger Loads

By MARC CHARNEY
Associated Press Writer

In Chicago, in Philadelphia, in New York, the answer is the same as commuter railroads and transportation agencies plan for possible widespread gasoline shortages.

How many extra passengers could commuter railroads carry?

Not many if current schedules remain the same.

But the "if" is a big one. And it goes to the heart of the problem facing commuter railroads and harried riders.

"If you mean packing people in at rush hours, we could handle any increase up to 15 per cent," says William J. Ronan, chairman of New York's Metropolitan Transportation Authority. "If we could extend business hours on either side of the peaks, we ought to be able to handle any appreciable load."

Ronan's answer can be heard in all commuter cities. If motorists flock to the railroads they'll find increased pressure for staggered work hours. The commuter lines, simply put, are at or near capacity now, and no added equipment is in sight for newcomers.

Some modern cars are on order. But they will replace equipment ready for the scrap heap.

Ronan's answer also illustrates a basic truth about American railroads: In 1974, public officials like him — not just railroad men — hold the key to the commuters' plight. They can coordinate all of a city's transit systems. They can use their offices to cajole or persuade business to change schedules. And they wield the money that runs the railroads.

In the late 1960s and early 1970s, Ronan's agency, which also runs New York's subways and buses, took on the financial burden of the Penn Central's commuter service and bought outright the ailing Long Island Rail Road, busiest commuter system in the country.

Penn Central now simply runs its lines for MTA under a service contract — an arrangement similar to that which the railroad has with Philadelphia's Southeastern Penn.

Youth Insane In Murder

CHEBOYGAN, Mich. (AP) — An 18-year-old Middletown, Ohio, youth, charged with the mutilation slaying of his 78-year-old grandmother, was found innocent by reason of insanity Tuesday.

Circuit Court Judge Joseph Swallow of Alpena sentenced Bruce Sampson to a state mental institution in Ypsilanti following a one-day trial without a jury.

Sampson's grandmother, Rose Ellen Sampson, also of Middletown, was slain last July 11 at a cottage in Mullet Lake in northern Michigan. The youth, his grandmother and sister, Diane, 15, were spending the summer at the cottage.

Police said Sampson made a statement in which he said he stabbed his grandmother several times with a meat cleaver because "she would not stop snoring," police said, Sampson reported his grandmother was slain by an intruder who drove off on a motorcycle.

Drs. Lynn W. Blunt and Derek Miller, both of Ann Arbor, testified Tuesday that Sampson was insane at the time of the murder.

sylvania Transportation Authority — SEPTA.

In both cities, taxpayer money buys new equipment and underwrites operating losses. In Chicago and surrounding counties, voters will decide March 19 whether they want a similar arrangement.

Officials in all three cities say commuter demand hasn't risen dramatically yet — but it might, especially if gasoline is rationed. In Philadelphia, SEPTA will speed up an improvement program and reschedule equipment-short lines to interconnect them. In New York, plans to retire between 94 and 100 twenty-year-old commuter cars have been shelved because the cars now may be needed.

The estimate on nearly all lines is that they could — with overcrowding — handle at most a 10-to-15 per cent increase on current schedules. Staggered hours, however, would be different.

"We are trying to encourage stores and plants to stagger starting and closing hours, so we can get out of the 7-to-9 morning and 4-to-6 evening syndrome," says James G. McConnon, SEPTA chairman. "If we could stretch it in the morning from 6-to-10 and in the evening from 3-to-7 it would make one heck of a difference."

Now public agencies in the three cities have spent hundreds of millions on new rolling stock, but it is needed just to replace the old. It was ordered when commuter ridership was declining.

Today, Ronan says, if money were immediately available and a production line ready to roll, it would still take 12 to 16 months for a car building firm to begin turning out a new order. Ordinarily, lead time for a new design is three to four years. And most car builders' plants are busy.

So commuters in the three cities find conditions that run the gamut from laudable to abysmal.

In New York, where about 200,000 ride the MTA's lines, Penn Central commuters were plagued last year with a major tunnel fire that shut down Grand Central Terminal, and a fatal train collision in Mount Vernon, N.Y. The MTA has bought more than 1,000 new high-speed cars, new signals and track improvements. But older equipment still breaks down and late trains remain a source of chronic complaint.

In Philadelphia, where 59,000 commute each day on Penn Central and Reading tracks, SEPTA hopes to place 48 new cars, each capable of seating 125, in service by September. Many of those commuters now stand on the basic Penn Central fleet of 281 cars, not air conditioned and seating 75 apiece, supplemented by 63 10-year-old cars of modern design.

Chicago, with 144,000 daily commuters using six private railroads, is the only city of the three where commuter lines are not yet run for a regional agency. It boasts that its largest commuter line, the Chicago and North Western, still makes a profit and runs its 280 modern double-deck cars on time.

Chicago's second largest commuter line, the Illinois Central Gulf, has 130 new doubledeck cars supplemented by 32 50-year-olds. Henry Davenport, ICG's senior vice president, says "we are operating with standing room only now" — but it's difficult to tell if that stems from gasoline shortages or snowstorms.

Milton Pikarsky, chairman of the Chicago Transit Authority, says "people are more aware" of the region's March 19 referendum because of the energy crisis. "Commuter railroads have little excess capacity," he says, and coordinated transit is needed.

But will the commuter agencies in Chicago and elsewhere lure many motorists from their cars, barring rationing?

"My guess would be very little," says Sheldon Pollack of the Regional Plan Association, a private group. "Most of the people who can use commuter lines are probably using them already."

Ronan says he's not so sure. Bus lines could coordinate with trains, making them more accessible.

Commuter Trains Fight Bigger Loads

By MARC CHARNEY
Associated Press Writer

In Chicago, in Philadelphia, in New York, the answer is the same as commuter railroads and transportation agencies plan for possible widespread gasoline shortages.

How many extra passengers could commuter railroads carry?

Not many if current schedules remain the same.

But the "if" is a big one. And it goes to the heart of the problem facing commuter railroads and harried riders.

"If you mean packing people in at rush hours, we could handle any increase up to 15 per cent," says William J. Ronan, chairman of New York's Metropolitan Transportation Authority. "If we could extend business hours on either side of the peaks, we ought to be able to handle any appreciable load."

Ronan's answer can be heard in all commuter cities. If motorists flock to the railroads they'll find increased pressure for staggered work hours. The commuter lines, simply put, are at or near capacity now, and no added equipment is in sight for newcomers.

Some modern cars are on order. But they will replace equipment ready for the scrap heap.

Ronan's answer also illustrates a basic truth about American railroads: In 1974, public officials like him — not just railroad men — hold the key to the commuters' plight. They can coordinate all of a city's transit systems. They can use their offices to cajole or persuade business to change schedules. And they wield the money that runs the railroads.

In the late 1960s and early 1970s, Ronan's agency, which also runs New York's subways and buses, took on the financial burden of the Penn Central's commuter service and bought outright the ailing Long Island Rail Road, busiest commuter system in the country.

Penn Central now simply runs its lines for MTA under a service contract — an arrangement similar to that which the railroad has with Philadelphia's Southeastern Penn-

Youth Insane In Murder

CHEBOYGAN, Mich. (AP) — An 18-year-old Middletown, Ohio, youth, charged with the mutilation slaying of his 78-year-old grandmother, was found innocent by reason of insanity Tuesday.

Circuit Court Judge Joseph Swallow of Alpena sentenced Bruce Sampson to a state mental institution in Ypsilanti following a one-day trial without a jury.

Sampson's grandmother, Rose Ellen Sampson, also of Middletown, was slain last July 11 at a cottage in Mullet Lake in northern Michigan. The youth, his grandmother and sister, Diane, 15, were spending the summer at the cottage.

Police said Sampson made a statement in which he said he stabbed his grandmother several times with a meat cleaver because "she would not stop snoring," police said, Sampson reported his grandmother was slain by an intruder who drove off on a motorcycle.

Drs. Lynn W. Blunt and Derek Miller, both of Ann Arbor, testified Tuesday that Sampson was insane at the time of the murder.

sylvania Transportation Authority — SEPTA.

In both cities, taxpayer money buys new equipment and underwrites operating losses. In Chicago and surrounding counties, voters will decide March 19 whether they want a similar arrangement.

Officials in all three cities say commuter demand hasn't risen dramatically yet — but it might, especially if gasoline is rationed. In Philadelphia, SEPTA will speed up an improvement program and reschedule equipment-short lines to interconnect them. In New York, plans to retire between 94 and 100 twenty-year-old commuter cars have been shelved because the cars now may be needed.

The estimate on nearly all lines is that they could — with overcrowding — handle at most a 10-to-15 per cent increase on current schedules. Staggered hours, however, would be different.

"We are trying to encourage stores and plants to stagger starting and closing hours, so we can get out of the 7-to-9 morning and 4-to-6 evening syndrome," says James G. McConnon, SEPTA chairman. "If we could stretch it in the morning from 6-to-10 and in the evening from 3-to-7 it would make one heck of a difference."

Now public agencies in the three cities have spent hundreds of millions

Commerce Department Sets Census Of Agriculture

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Commerce Department has started preparing for its 1974 Census of Agriculture.

Although the farm census historically has been taken every five years as a separate nose count, thoughts had been given to combining it with government's economic census, which concentrates on business and manufacturing.

The Census Bureau in Commerce is responsible for both, with the farm count made for years ending in nine and four, and the business-manufacturing inventory for those ending in seven and two.

Thus, if the farm census had been eliminated, a full enumeration of agricultural people and enterprise would have been skipped for 1974 and put off until the combined census was made for 1977.

Congress, at the behest of farm members and agricultural groups, specified in the Agriculture and Consumer Protection Act of 1973 that Commerce "shall conduct a census of agriculture in 1974" without further foot-dragging.

The Commerce Department now has issued publicity sheets announcing the 1974 census will be taken. No mention was made that Congress ordered it to be done or that consideration had been given to combining the two reports.

"Data will be collected early in 1974 covering farm and ranch operations during 1974, and the (Census Bureau) reminds the nation's farmers to keep records that will help them furnish the information requested on the forms they will receive in the mail next January," the official news release said.

Although Congress interceded to make the special 1974 farm census a certainty once more, one spokesman said there may be another attempt to combine agriculture and big business in the economic census of 1977.

Directory Assistance Fee Instituted By Cincinnati Bell

CINCINNATI, Ohio (AP)— "Directory assistance, may I help you?"

That cheery greeting will come with a fee attached beginning March 3, Cincinnati Bell announced Tuesday.

Listing such service as 20 cents per call, the telephone utility said it is the first to take the step.

Cincinnati Bell said the rate hike was necessary because 22 per cent of its customers, mainly business firms, make 87 per cent of the calls to operators seeking telephone numbers.

Oil Firms Note Rise In Profits

SAN FRANCISCO, Calif. (AP) — The 1973 earnings of Standard Oil Co. of California increased by 54 per cent over 1972.

Fourth quarter earnings jumped by 94 per cent.

Standard of California, the nation's fifth largest oil company, said on Wednesday that its estimated earnings for 1973 totaled $843.6 million, or $4.97 a share. The 1972 net income was $547 million, or $3.22 a share.

Fourth quarter earnings rose by 94 per cent to $283.1 million or $1.67 a share. The 1972 final quarter produced $145.8 million in net income, or 86 cents a share.

In Los Angeles, Atlantic Richfield Co., the eighth largest U.S. oil company, reported a 38 per cent earnings gain over 1972.

Arco's net income was $270.18 million, or $4.76 a share, up from $195.56 million, or $3.46 a share, in 1972. Sales rose 17 per cent in $4.48 billion.

In 1973's final quarter Arco earned $91.69 million, or $1.61 a share, compared with $65.25 million, or $1.16 a share, in 1972. Fourth quarter sales increased 31 per cent to $1.33 billion.

Chaplain Sees No KSU Charges

CLEVELAND, Ohio (AP)— An Ohio National Guard chaplain who was critical of guardsmen involved in the 1970 Kent State University shootings says he does not believe any of the troops will be indicted by a federal grand jury investigating the incident.

"It is highly doubtful that the jury will return indictments against individual guardsmen," Chaplain John Simons of Willoughby told newsmen Wednesday after being questioned for 45 minutes by the 23-member panel.

Simons is chaplain of the 107th Armored Cavalry. Shots were fired by members of the 107th's Troop G when four students were killed and nine wounded by guardsmen May 4, 1970, in a confrontation with antiwar demonstrators.

He declined to discuss with newsmen his testimony Wednesday but indicated that he told the panel there was no conspiracy among guardsmen to shoot students.

When a reporter asked him if he thought there might be other indictments, Maj. Simons replied, "There is no real justification for indictments."

Asked about murder as a possible reason for indictments, he said, "There were killings, but not murder. There is a difference."

A reporter insisted that indictments could be returned because of the killings and the chaplain replied, "I don't see why. The men were there under orders of the governor to do a job."

In describing a guardsman immediately after the shootings, Simons was quoted as saying, "There was hate on the guy's face."

He said in a television interview six months after the shootings that guardsmen on a campus slope known as Blanket Hill, where the shootings occurred, were not a controlled, disciplined military unit and "someone fired without orders." He also said the situation was not so bad that the guardsmen had to fire.

The major told newsmen Wednesday that he would stand by those statements.

He said the federal panel was making a thorough investigation "and from the standpoint of time it is a little more objective" than other probes of the shootings.

He said the others came shortly after the shootings "in the midst of emotional upheaval, which was natural."

Maj. Simons was preceded in the jury room by Capt. Raymond J. Srp of suburban Solon, who commanded Troop G at the time of the shootings.

Srp was questioned all morning, completing testimony he started late Tuesday, but refused to answer questions from reporters later. He was not listed by the Guard as among those who fired their weapons.

Shots also were fired by members of Company A and Company C, 145th Infantry.

Between 50 and 60 guardsmen have been questioned by the grand jury, but only a handful have discussed their

Commerce Department Sets Census Of Agriculture

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Commerce Department has started preparing for its 1974 Census of Agriculture.

Although the farm census historically has been taken every five years as a separate nose count, thoughts had been given to combining it with government's economic census, which concentrates on business and manufacturing.

The Census Bureau in Commerce is responsible for both, with the farm count made for years ending in nine and four, and the business-manufacturing inventory for those ending in seven and two.

Thus, if the farm census had been eliminated, a full enumeration of agricultural people and enterprise would have been skipped for 1974 and put off until the combined census was made for 1977.

Congress, at the behest of farm members and agricultural groups, specified in the Agriculture and Consumer Protection Act of 1973 that Commerce "shall conduct a census of agriculture in 1974" without further foot-dragging.

The Commerce Department now has issued publicity sheets announcing the 1974 census will be taken. No mention was made that Congress ordered it to be done or that consideration had been given to combining the two reports.

"Data will be collected early in 1974 covering farm and ranch operations during 1974, and the (Census Bureau) reminds the nation's farmers to keep records that will help them furnish the information requested on the forms they will receive in the mail next January," the official news release said.

Although Congress interceded to make the special 1974 farm census a certainty once more, one spokesman said there may be another attempt to combine agriculture and big business in the economic census of 1977.

Directory Assistance Fee Instituted By Cincinnati Bell

CINCINNATI, Ohio (AP)—"Directory assistance, may I help you?"

That cheery greeting will come with a fee attached beginning March 3, Cincinnati Bell announced Tuesday. Listing such service as 20 cents per call, the telephone utility said it is the first to take the step.

Cincinnati Bell said the rate hike was necessary because 22 per cent of its customers, mainly business firms, make 87 per cent of the calls to operators seeking telephone numbers.

Oil Firms Note Rise In Profits

SAN FRANCISCO, Calif. (AP) — The 1973 earnings of Standard Oil Co. of California increased by 54 per cent over 1972.

Fourth quarter earnings jumped by 94 per cent.

Standard of California, the nation's fifth largest oil company, said on Wednesday that its estimated earnings for 1973 totaled $843.6 million, or $4.97 a share. The 1972 net income was $547 million, or $3.22 a share.

Fourth quarter earnings rose by 94 per cent to $283.1 million or $1.67 a share. The 1972 final quarter produced $145.8 million in net income, or 86 cents a share.

In Los Angeles, Atlantic Richfield Co., the eighth largest U.S. oil company, reported a 38 per cent earnings gain over 1972.

Arco's net income was $270.18 million, or $4.76 a share, up from $195.56 million, or $3.46 a share, in 1972. Sales rose 17 per cent in $4.48 billion.

In 1973's final quarter Arco earned $91.69 million, or $1.61 a share, compared with $65.25 million, or $1.16 a share, in 1972. Fourth quarter sales increased 31 per cent to $1.33 billion.

Chaplain Sees No KSU Charges

CLEVELAND, Ohio (AP)—An Ohio National Guard chaplain who was critical of guardsmen involved in the 1970 Kent State University shootings says he does not believe any of the troops will be indicted by a federal grand jury investigating the incident.

"It is highly doubtful that the jury will return indictments against individual guardsmen," Chaplain John Simons of Willoughby told newsmen Wednesday after being questioned for 45 minutes by the 23-member panel.

Simons is chaplain of the 107th Armored Cavalry. Shots were fired by members of the 107th's Troop G when four students were killed and nine wounded by guardsmen May 4, 1970, in a confrontation with antiwar demonstrators.

He declined to discuss with newsmen his testimony Wednesday but indicated that he told the panel there was no conspiracy among guardsmen to shoot students.

When a reporter asked him if he thought there might be other indictments, Maj. Simons replied, "There is no real justification for indictments."

Asked about murder as a possible reason for indictments, he said, "There were killings, but not murder. There is a difference."

A reporter insisted that indictments could be returned because of the killings and the chaplain replied, "I don't see why. The men were there under orders of the governor to do a job."

In describing a guardsman immediately after the shootings, Simons was quoted as saying, "There was hate on the guy's face."

He said in a television interview six months after the shootings that guardsmen on a campus slope known as Blanket Hill, where the shootings occurred, were not a controlled, disciplined military unit and "someone fired without orders." He also said the situation was not so bad that the guardsmen had to fire.

The major told newsmen Wednesday that he would stand by those statements.

He said the federal panel was making a thorough investigation "and from the standpoint of time it is a little more objective" than other probes of the shootings.

He said the others came shortly after the shootings "in the midst of emotional upheaval, which was natural."

Maj. Simons was preceded in the jury room by Capt. Raymond J. Srp of suburban Solon, who commanded Troop G at the time of the shootings.

Srp was questioned all morning, completing testimony he started late Tuesday, but refused to answer questions from reporters later. He was not listed by the Guard as among those who fired their weapons.

Shots also were fired by members of Company A and Company C, 145th Infantry.

Between 50 and 60 guardsmen have been questioned by the grand jury, but only a handful have discussed their

Blue Cross Raps No-Fault Package

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — A spokesman for Blue Cross and a state legislator disagree on the effect of the proposed no-fault automobile insurance law in Ohio.

Howard Franz, president of Blue Cross of Central Ohio, said Wednesday the bill now before the Senate would cause duplication of coverage.

"We estimate the duplication would raise insurance costs statewide annually by $20 million," he said at a news conference.

"Another $51 million would be wasted because lower-cost policies from Blue Cross and Blue Shield would not be allowed by the proposed legislation."

However, State Rep. William Hinig, D-95 New Philadelphia, reacted differently. Hinig said no-fault automobile insurance would produce competition among insurance companies to provide coverage at lower prices.

The bill, passed by the House last July, would require all automobile owners to purchase a single policy covering both liability to others and their own hospital and medical expenses.

"The bill is a package deal," said Hinig. "I can't see people going two or three places just to get the necessary coverage."

Franz said the nine Blue Cross and Blue Shield plans in Ohio plan to spend $40,000 to fight for a change in the legislation.

He said the effect of the measure would be that auto insurers would have to add health insurance coverage or health care providers would have to include auto liability protection to meet the single policy requirements of the bill.

"We don't want to write auto liability coverage," he said. "That's not our business. Health care is our business and that's where we want to stay."

Franz said his group wants to amend the bill to allow health care providers the right to extend medical protection to policyholders without adding auto coverage.

Current health coverage would protect the driver and his family in an auto accident, but not a pedestrian or a passenger in the car.

Franz said Blue Cross could provide the additional protection for the pedestrian and passenger at about $38. He added that auto insurers would charge an average of $52-54 for additional coverage.

Diluted Gasoline Said Sold

CLEVELAND, Ohio (AP) — Two Canton truck drivers uncovered a scheme of selling diluted gasoline to motorists in northeastern Ohio, a spokesman for the attorney general's office said Wednesday.

The spokesman said Atty. Gen. Bill Brown used the drivers' information to secure a temporary restraining order against nine operators of Clarkins Discount Gas Stations and Unishops, Inc. of Cleveland, the parent firm.

A Cuyahoga County Common Pleas judge issued the order and will hold a hearing on a permanent injunction in the near future, the spokesman said.

"They said in affidavits that they had been ordered since last summer to fill one or more of their compartments with a 50-50 mixture of regular and premium gasoline.

"When they got to the Clarkins stations, they dumped the blend into premium storage tanks."

The spokesman said investigators for the attorney general bought samples and had them tested.

They found the octane ratings ranged from 91.4 to 94.5 and fell short of the company's advertised ratings of 100 or more, he said.

The stations are in Cleveland, Canton, Akron, Youngstown, Elyria and Kent.

They have been ordered to stop selling the diluted gasoline, but have not been stopped from selling regular fuel, the spokesman said.

"This is not the end of investigations," the spokesman said. "There is no reason to believe we will stop the investigations."

However, he would not indicate if the attorney general's office were probing any particular complaints.

Glenn Blames Energy Pinch On Congress

CHILLICOTHE, Ohio (AP)—Democratic U.S. Senate candidate John Glenn blamed Congress Wednesday night for letting the energy crisis happen.

"No problem confronting our country today presents a more clearcut example of mismanagement on the federal level than the dilemma we have come to know as the energy crisis," he told about 700 Ross County Democrats at their annual Roosevelt Day Dinner.

"There would be no crisis if we had adequate leadership in Washington, if some 70 per cent of our congressmen and senators were not attorneys whose expertise simply does not include a background in the technology and science of energy conservation," he said.

He said members of Congress "are the ones who set up the tax loopholes, the inequities that let all this happen."

British Miners Ponder Future

SIRHOWY VALLEY, Wales (AP) — A winter gloom of despair, for themselves and their industry, hangs over the mining valleys of south Wales as the men from the pits ponder their strike vote Friday.

"They say we'll be voting ourselves out of existence," growled repair man Peter Padfield, coming off the day shift at the Oakdale colliery. "Then let the industry die a natural death. The youngsters won't have it. There is nothing there to attract them."

Wearing minstrel-show faces and sooty overalls, the men shuffled from the cage that jolted them out of the miles of underground tunnels and gathered around a union announcement of the strike ballot posted on the wall of the lamp shed.

"Nobody wants a strike," said blacksmith Malcom Howls with a shake of his head, "but if the government wants coal it's got to pay a fair wage first."

Tommy Parr, lodge secretary of the National Union of Mineworkers at the Oakdale pit, watched the begrimed men troop off to the bathhouse.

"Not one man there under 40," he said. "Friday may be the last chance to salvage the industry. After years of being kicked around by the Labor government and now by the Conservatives, we are suddenly important because of the Arab oil squeeze."

Ralph Patrick, Official Nose

ASHLAND, Ky. (AP) — When it comes to malodors, Ralph E. Patrick is an expert. Patrick is an environmental scientist for Ashland Oil Inc., and he always carries his most sensitive and reliable odor detector with him. It's as plain as the nose on his face; in fact, it is the nose on his face.

Patrick is the official nose at Ashland Oil. It is his job to detect and analyze malodors at the company's refineries so that they can be corrected in production processes.

"No instrument can duplicate the human nose for detecting odors," says Patrick. "It's always accurate — barring hay fever or a head cold, that is. If you can smell an odor and it is irritating, the nose knows."

To be sure, Patrick brings other equipment along on his odor search. He has designed a mobile testing unit, mounted in the back of a van, which determines the source and concentration of odors.

Spencer's Island, N.S., is the site of a cairn marking the spot where the famous mystery ship, the Marie Celeste, was built.

Shortly after 6 a.m. Friday, when the night shift is wound up in the pits, the men will emerge from the clean clothes side of the pithead baths and place their yes or no answer in a ballot box outside the canteen on their union's call for authority to strike.

The strike call, tentatively scheduled for midnight next Saturday if the vote is affirmative, is the culmination of a three-month wage dispute that has already put nonessential British industries on a threeday week to save electricity.

The miners, whose output supplies most of the nation's energy needs, have refused to work weekends and overtime in support of their demands for a weekly pay increase from $81 a week to $101.25. The National Coal

Board says the wage ceilings established under Phase III of Prime Minister Edward Heath's anti-inflation controls allow it to offer no more than an across-the-board increase of $5.17 a week.

A strike by the nation's 280,000 miners is the next step to enforce their wage demands.

Some coal pits in other parts of Britain voted today, but all the miners of south Wales go to the ballot box Friday. A 55 per cent affirmative vote is needed for a strike call.

South Wales miners rolled up 65 per cent, against a national average of 59 per cent, in the 1972 strike that crippled Britain for seven weeks. This time, the figure in the Welsh valleys may go higher.

British Miners Ponder Future

SIRHOWY VALLEY, Wales (AP) — A winter gloom of despair, for themselves and their industry, hangs over the mining valleys of south Wales as the men from the pits ponder their strike vote Friday.

"They say we'll be voting ourselves out of existence," growled repair man Peter Padfield, coming off the day shift at the Oakdale colliery. "Then let the industry die a natural death. The youngsters won't have it. There is nothing there to attract them."

Wearing minstrel-show faces and sooty overalls, the men shuffled from the cage that jolted them out of the miles of underground tunnels and gathered around a union announcement of the strike ballot posted on the wall of the lamp shed.

"Nobody wants a strike," said blacksmith Malcom Howls with a shake of his head, "but if the government wants coal it's got to pay a fair wage first."

Tommy Parr, lodge secretary of the National Union of Mineworkers at the Oakdale pit, watched the begrimed men troop off to the bathhouse.

"Not one man there under 40," he said. "Friday may be the last chance to salvage the industry. After years of being kicked around by the Labor government and now by the Conservatives, we are suddenly important because of the Arab oil squeeze."

Ralph Patrick, Official Nose

ASHLAND, Ky. (AP) — When it comes to malodors, Ralph E. Patrick is an expert. Patrick is an environmental scientist for Ashland Oil Inc., and he always carries his most sensitive and reliable odor detector with him. It's as plain as the nose on his face; in fact, it is the nose on his face.

Patrick is the official nose at Ashland Oil. It is his job to detect and analyze malodors at the company's refineries so that they can be corrected in production processes.

"No instrument can duplicate the human nose for detecting odors," says Patrick. "It's always accurate — barring hay fever or a head cold, that is. If you can smell an odor and it is irritating, the nose knows."

To be sure, Patrick brings other equipment along on his odor search. He has designed a mobile testing unit, mounted in the back of a van, which determines the source and concentration of odors.

Union Terminal Problem Grows

CINCINNATI, Ohio (AP) — The mercury skidded below freezing after dark the other night. Yet nearly half the 100 train passengers gathered at Cincinnati's tiny new Amtrak station shivered on the outside.

There was no room inside in the warmth.

Twelve blocks to the north stood the ruins of the one of the best-planned railroad terminals in the country, shoddy sign of a knotty civic problem.

It all began when Amtrak abandoned the 41-year-old Cincinnati Union Terminal because it was too big and too costly to operate.

Prideful citizens raised $420,000 to save the mosaic murals in the terminal and moved them to the new terminal at the Greater Cincinnati Airport south of Covington, Ky.

The Cincinnati Union Terminal Co. sold its property to Southern Railroad. Southern Railroad decided to expand its piggy-back freight operations carrying new cars and trucks stacked double on flat cars — but the overhead concourse was in the way. Southern decided to tear down the concourse, a walkway for passengers who could board up to 20 passenger trains a day.

Cincinnati citizens complained. The city did battle. Southern won.

Then the fuel crisis hit. Airlines cut back flights. Auto firms cut back production. Passenger train traffic increased. But, meanwhile, the terminal company offered to sell the terminal rotunda — held out of deal with Southern Railroad — to the city.

Citizens groups formed. Officials ordered studies. Everyone wanted to find a use for the terminal — only no one wanted to move in.

The Southwestern Ohio Transit Authority, which runs the city's Queen City Bus Line, applied for a federal grant to buy the rotunda plus its 15 acres along with another three to the north. Cost would be $12.5 million.

"But we told the city a covenant will have to be found," said Jack Meyer, SORTA president. "We'll store 300 buses in the lower level, plus a maintenance facility."

Meyer suggested the city move some operations there.

City Manager E. Robert Turner said "No."

"It's up to SORTA," he said. "The city can't stand any more expenditures right now."

Mayor Theodore M. Berry wants the Citizens To Save The Terminal, the group which raised money for the murals, to find tenants. But, unless the terminal is used as a terminal, no one wants to run the movie theater, the restaurant or rent the hundreds of offices.

"It is time for us to decide," said chairman Alfred Moore. "There are compelling reasons for SORTA to go in."

But, finding occupants is speculation, even if rent will run only $3 to $4 a square foot. Greyhound and Trailways bus lines both want to remain downtown. The terminal lies in a ghetto west of downtown, although it is close to Interstate 75 and there are seven railroad tracks.

Chairman Michael Mitchell of the Citizens Committee to Revive the Terminal sees the huge structure as a future hope. They believe rail traffic will increase with the energy shortage.

They see the terminal as a "multimodal transportation center," something with a European flavor serving all transportation needs.

"Cincinnati's Union Terminal was designed to be a showplace, a monument to the city's industrial might, a focal point of civic pride," said the preface to the committee's study. "But, above all, it was designed to be a railway terminus, unsurpassed in efficiency as well as grandeur."

Former Ohioan Receives Award

CHICAGO (AP) — An unemployed Chicago man who formerly lived in Dayton, Ohio, was presented the city's Medal of Merit by Mayor Richard Daley Wednesday.

Raymond Williams Jr., 23, was cited for "outstanding courage" when he rescued a suburban Oak Park woman from a purse snatcher aboard an elevated train Monday.

A Navy veteran who has had some training in karate, Williams subdued the 19-year-old man and held him for police.

Daley told Williams the city government "could use brave young men like yourself" and urged him to apply for a job.

Williams said he had received several offers of employment since the purse snatching incident.

CIA Tapes On Watergate Destroyed

WASHINGTON (AP) — CIA director William E. Colby says the spy agency has destroyed all but one of its tape recordings made during the period of the Watergate affair.

In a telephone interview Tuesday night, Colby said the agency has only one tape about Watergate matters.

"Sen. (Howard) Baker asked us if there were any other tapes that bore on the subject, and we don't have any others on this subject at the moment. We had periodic destruction of our tapes," Colby said.

A transcript of the one tape has been entered in the record of the Senate Watergate committee, of which Baker, a Tennessee Republican, is vice chairman. The agency provided the transcript to the committee.

Baker confirmed in another telephone interview that he had requested any CIA tapes bearing on the Watergate affair, but he declined to say what he expected to find in them.

The senator said the CIA was cooperating and he expected to obtain something but he did not know how much.

He confirmed that he had talked to Colby about the matter over the weekend.

Colby said he would give Baker the tape of which the committee already has a transcript, and added, "Anything we own he can have."

"Over the last 15 years, we have made tapes, but periodically they were torn up the way you tear up old notes or old checks after income tax time. And we have not made any tapes in the past year," Colby said.

"There was nothing deliberate about this in the sense of destroying a damaging tape or anything like that."

CBS News, meanwhile, reported that the secret CIA recordings may have included conversation between high agency officials and the President.

I do everything for them, and get no salary. I am just about broke, and really should have a paying job.

Dad is senile and almost totally blind and deaf. Mother is diabetic and bedridden. Both are weak and failing.

My problem is this: I want to visit my married daughter in California. Her baby is 2 years old and I haven't even seen him yet. I haven't had a day off in three years. My sister works, and I can't get anyone to stay with my parents for two weeks. I am all worn out, and need to get away. My daughter will pay for my trip if I can make it. Please help me.

DEAR CHAINED: Your parents also are your sister's parents, so why not ask sister to request a two-week leave of absence and give you a long overdue, much needed respite? Or contact County Welfare and ask if they can help you. I wish you luck. (P.S. I hope your parents don't know that you feel "stuck" with them. Knowing that they're a burden would make their miserable lot more difficult to bear.)

DEAR ABBY: A 22-year-old graduate student in whom I have more than just a casual interest tells me that she is married "in name only" to a Japanese student. She says he has been in this country for four years and he wants to remain longer, so in order to keep from being sent back to Japan he had to marry a citizen-so she married him.

This girl insists that she has never had anything to do with him sexually even though they live together. She swears up and down that she's telling me the truth, and she married him because she likes to "help" people.

Abby, doesn't this strike you as being somewhat unusual? Or can this girl be for real?

SUSPICIOUS
DEAR SUSPICIOUS: It's a rather bizarre situation, but anything is possible. Even if the girl is telling you the truth, she's still a married woman, so if you're smart, you'll regard her as somebody else's wife.

DEAR ABBY: I am being married soon and am planning my wedding. My older sister was married two years ago in the most beautiful wedding gown and veil I ever saw. I always dreamed of being married in it.

Now I have second thoughts about wearing it because I am very superstitious, and my sister has had terrible luck in her marriage. Her husband got her pregnant right off the bat and ran off, saying he was joining the Marines. She found out he never joined the Marines. He went back to an old girl friend who lives in a nearby town.

Anyway, Abby, I would feel creepy wearing my sister's bridal outfit. Do you believe if I wore it it would bring me bad luck?

SUPERSTITIOUS
DEAR SUPERSTITIOUS: No. But if you do, don't wear it.

Bengals Start Talks With Draft Picks

CINCINNATI, Ohio (AP)— Mrs. George Kollar of Warren woke up with a wish Tuesday. She and the Cincinnati Bengals are hoping it comes true. "It was psychic," laughed her husband. "She said 'gee, I'd like to see Bill go to the Cincinnati Bengals.'" The words proved prophetic. Her son became the No. 1 draft choice of the National Football League club.

Kollar, the highly-regarded blocker from Montana State, was joined by his parents in Cincinnati Wednesday and the reunion resulted in a surprise for Bengals' Coach Paul Brown. "I played against your Massillon team in 1937 or 1938," said Kollar's father proudly as they posed for a photo. And a rehash was on.

The 21-year-old Kollar beamed as his dad and Brown restaged the game. "I was a halfback for Youngstown Chaney. Frankie Sinkwich was on that team too," said the senior Kollar. "Yes," said Brown, "and we won something like 16-7."

The younger Kollar, a 250-pound defensive tackle, was one of the Bengals' top four draft choices who visited Riverfront Stadium Wednesday as the draft continued.

No contract signings were expected, but the Bengals were openly hopeful of coming to a fast agreement with the top choices.

Kollar and No. 2 pick Charlie Davis, who are both being sought by Chicago of rival World Football League (WFL), indicated they would wait to hear offers before making their decisions. "I'm leaning toward the NFL," said Kollar, "but I'm not making any com-mittments." He arrived after a grueling 22½-hour trip from Montana. The Bengals, taking no chances of letting Chicago make early gains in the tug-of-war, Tuesday sent Kollar flying almost 500 miles west to Seattle then rerouted him through St. Louis to avoid a stop in Chicago.

Davis, the brilliant Colorado running back, departed saying he was impressed with the Bengals "first-class operation," but added "it's going to be a money thing with me."

"If the WFL offers this much more money," he said, holding his thumb and forefinger an inch apart, "I'll go with the NFL. But if it's a big difference, I'll take the WFL offer."

Kollar was Chicago's No. 1 pick and Davis was sixth. Davis said Brown offered a three-year contract, but no salary terms were mentioned. Brown said he will refuse to get in a bidding war over the two.

"If we draw somebody we can't afford, we'll say 'good luck, we can't afford you,'" said Brown. "I'm not going to be unfair to players I've already got. We're not interested in ridiculous situations."

Brown also talked with No. 3 pick David Lapham, a 6-foot-5, 260-pound offensive guard from Syracuse, and Evan Jolitz, the fourth round choice from Cincinnati. He is a linebacker.

In other areas, Brown observed: "I have no plans to trade Sherman White." The Bengals No. 1 draft choice of 1972 has told teammates he does not want to return to Cincinnati.

— "We never thought we'd get to Kollar or Mike Boryla of Stanford. In fact, we gave up on Kollar after he looked so good in the Senior Bowl. But I think the reason he was still available was because other teams drafted purely for position and, of course, there was a rumor going around he had already signed with the WFL.

— "Boryla was rated by us as the top college quarterback available in the draft. He's a big strong-armed guy."

Boryla, son of former Notre Dame and pro basketball star Vince, was taken in the fifth round.

— Our ninth round choice Richard Bishop of Louisville could be the surprise of summer camp. He's 6-foot-1, 275 pounds, but runs the 40 in 4.7 seconds. He was a high school sprinter. People who played Louisville said he was something else."

8 Ohioans Among NFL Choices

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — "Of course, I was disappointed. I've got a lot of pride in myself."

Greg Hare, the eighth round choice of the Buffalo Bills in the National Football League draft Wednesday, looked back on his senior year at Ohio State.

Hare, a starter as a sophomore and junior, yielded the Buckeyes' quarterbacking job to slick-running sophomore Cornelius Greene as Ohio State went through a 10-0-1 season, including a Rose Bowl victory.

"As far as the team went, everything was great. We didn't pass that much anyway," said the good-passing Hare, 6-foot-3 and 202 pounds.

Hare played only 55½ minutes as a senior, completing 11 of 30 passes for 224 yards and three touchdowns. He had hit 55 passes for 815 yards and started all 11 games as a junior.

Hare said, "my biggest problem with the Bills will be learning the passing game and reading defenses. I've been working out a lot already, mostly with my throwing."

Hare was one of eight Ohio State players taken in the draft.

Dan Scott, a 6-3, 270-pound reserve offensive guard from Amityville, N.Y., was taken in round nine by the Cleveland Browns, Jim Kregel, a 6-2, 234-pound three-year offensive guard regular from Toledo, was the Pittsburgh Steelers' tenth round pick. And linebacker Vic Koegeel was selected by Atlanta in the 12th round.

Ohio State players taken Tuesday included offensive tackle John Hicks to the New York Giants, linebackers Rick Middleton to the New Orleans Saints and Randy Gradishar to the Denver Broncos and split end Morris Bradshaw to the Oakland Raiders.

The Baltimore Colts picked Paul Miles of Bowling Green in the eighth round and the Philadelphia Eagles went for Phil Polak, another Falcon running back, in round No. 10.

Two other Mid American Conference schools figures in Wednesday's selections.

The Giants' sixth round choice was Eastern Michigan offensive tackle Jim Petrak, while the Minnesota Vikings took Northern Illinois fullback Mark Kellar in the same round.

Two Cincinnati Bearcats also were drafted in the eighth and ninth rounds, offensive guard Tom Forrest to the San Diego Chargers and running back Reggie Harrison to the St. Louis Cardinals.

Three Bowling Green players were late round selections. Wide receiver Roger Wallace was taken by St. Louis in the 12th round, tight end Greg Meczka was tabbed by San Diego in the 15th round and defensive back Myron Wilson was the choice of Detroit in the 16th round.

Bob Hunt, Heidelberg's star running back, was picked by the Cleveland Browns in the 14th round.

Buffalo selected kicker Sal Casola of Cincinnati in the 17th round.

Circleville Cagers Face Double Action This Week

Circleville's cagers will see double action this week when they travel to Wilmington Friday night in a South Central Ohio League encounter and host London Saturday night at the high school gym.

The Tigers need a win over Wilmington to stay in the third place battle with Hillsboro. Circleville is 5-4 in league competition and 8-5 overall while Hillsboro is 6-3 in league action and 9-5 for the season.

Washington C. H. holds top spot in the league race with a record of 7-1 but Miami Trace is snapping at the heels of the Blue Lions with a mark of 6-1.

Wilmington has not had much success after winning its season opener and has 0-8 mark in the league and 1-12 overall.

The Hurricane has been coming close but has not supplied the punch to turn losses into victory. Wilmington dropped a 72-66 decision to Madison Plains in its last outing Tuesday night.

Wilmington will probably employ a man to man defense but also like to use a 1-2-2 zone press.

Starting for Wilmington will be: Kip Collins, 5-foot-9, and Bill Crowe, 5-foot-8, at the guards, Jeff Early, 6-foot-2, at center with Randy Reeder, 6-foot-2, and Ralph Harding, 6-foot-3, at the forward posts.

London will bring a young team with good size into Roundtown Saturday night. The Red Raiders have been going against some rough competition and hold a season mark of 10-4. They compete in the Mid-Eight League.

The Red Raiders are paced by junior forward John Phillips who is averaging 17 points a game and have one of the top centers in the area in sophomore Cecil Russell.

They are a strong defensive team and will use a man to man and also 2-3 and 2-2-1 zones.

The first six men for the Red Raiders include a freshman, Paul Chadwell, 5-foot-10; sophomore Russell, 5-foot-4; and juniors, Jim Bacon, 5-foot-10; Jeff Hunter, 5-foot-9; Phillips, 6-foot-1; and Jim Shively, 6-foot-1.

Circleville regained the winning track, after dropping three in a row, last week when the Tigers took Greenfield into camp.

Starting for Circleville will be Doug Radabaugh and Robin Martin at the guards, Kris Klineat center with Harold Reed and Perry Hoskins working up front.

The undefeated Circleville reserve squad will be looking for its 14th and 15th victories this week.

Foreman Set For Battle With Norton

NEW YORK (AP) — While Muhammad Ali claims to be the people's champion, George Foreman, the official holder of the heavyweight boxing title, is just a man of the world.

"I'd like to think that I'm as close to being an international citizen as anybody in the world right now," Foreman said Tuesday at the formal announcement of his third straight fight outside of the United States — a March 26 title defense against Ken Norton in Caracas, Venezuela.

While knowledgeable boxing people believe legal entanglements involving his finances and his management are keeping Foreman from fighting in the United States, the champion said: "The title don't belong to any one country. I won the championship outside of the United States."

Foreman won the title by stopping Joe Frazier in two rounds at Kingston, Jamaica, Jan. 22, 1973. In his only fight since, he knocked out Joe "King" Roman in one round in Tokyo last Aug. 31.

Foreman is guaranteed $700,000 against 40 per cent of all income and Norton is guaranteed $200,000 against 20 per cent, said Barry Burnstein, president of Video Techniques, Inc., which will promote in conjunction with Telemidia de Panama.

Little Mustangs Win Contests

Westfall's seventh and eighth grade cagers both came up with wins over visiting Huntington Wednesday at Jackson School.

The seventh grade Mustangs won 43-26 and were paced by George Kerns with 11 points, Tom Adams with eight and H. L. Gibson with six.

The eighth graders nipped Huntington, 37-36, with Herb Picklesimer, Mike Hurley and Jeff Mowery each netting eight points.

Both Westfall teams will be back in action Feb. 7 against Circleville at Jackson School.

Tonight's girls' basketball game between Circleville and Westfall has been switched to the Tigers' gym. Game time is 4:30 p.m.

$600 Million Damage Suit Filed By ABA

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — The American Basketball Association and nine franchise owners have filed a suit against the National Basketball Association and 17 of its franchise holders which could, if successful, revolutionize the signing of players to contracts.

The $600-million suit filed Wednesday in U.S. District Court charges fraud, breach of contract and antitrust violations.

The antitrust portion seeks $100 million trebled as damages while $100 million is sought for breach of contract and $200 million for fraud.

The court was requested to prohibit the NBA and its members from signing any new player contracts not negotiated and paid for by an individual team owner.

The ABA also asked the court to prevent the NBA from signing or enforcing existing player contracts containing any form of a reserve or option clause, and to limit NBA player contracts to one year.

It also asked the court to enjoin the senior loop from signing any contract, agreement or having an understanding with any player enrolled in any university, college, junior college, high school or preparatory school for four years from Jan. 30.

The suit said that since the NBA was formed in 1949 it deliberately monopolized major league professional basketball.

Warriors Top Hawks

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Golden State's Rick Barry turned in a 40-point performance — highlighted by a 20-point third quarter — that throttled the Atlanta Hawks, but couldn't be convinced it was one of his best games.

"No, I would not say this was one of my best games," Barry said after he overcame a cold first period and spearheaded the Warriors' drive to a 129-122 victory over the Hawks in a National Basketball Association game Wednesday night.

Barty said that after the first period he was able to "get loose and score several baskets with guys hanging on me."

In other NBA games, Boston beat Cleveland 120-108, Detroit topped Buffalo 111-96, New York whipped Kansas City-Omaha 108-88 and Chicago defeated Capital 103-94.

The East defeated the West 128-112 in the American Basketball Association All-Star Game.

Pete Maravich scored 33 points for the Hawks, who lost their 11th contest in the last 14 while the Warriors scored their fourth consecutive triumph.

Geronimo, Kosco Sign Pacts

CINCINNATI, Ohio (AP)— The Cincinnati Reds announced the signing of outfielders Cesar Geronimo and Andy Kosco Wednesday, bringing to nine the number of players signed for the 1974 season.

Kosco, 32, joined the Reds last year after a trade and hit .280 as a utility player.

Geronimo, 25, slumped to a .210 batting average from .275 the season before as a result of a shoulder injury suffered while playing winter ball.

Winners Named In Y Contest

Winners have been announced in the YMCA and Chillicothe Optimist Club fifth annual Pass, Shoot and Dribble contest held Saturday at the local Y.

First place winners were: Ben Posey, age 13; Carey Dean, 12; Mike Whitten, 11; James Hart, 15; Donald Justus, 9; and Chris Plescia, 8.

Second place finishers were: Rod Brungs, age 13; Jimmy Teets, 12; Rusty Sturgell, 11; Todd Hart, 10; Barry Sealock, 9; and Todd Justus, 8.

Michael Whitten was high scorer in the event with a total of 148 points.

First and second place finishers in the local contest will compete in the Chillicothe District finals at the VA Hospital in February.

Winners of the Chillicothe District will compete in the District finals, later in February, at Bexley Junior High School. The state finals will be held at Zanesville in March.

Glenn And Laub Lead Tourney

CLEVELAND, Ohio (AP) — Dale Glenn and Larry Laub, a pair of Californians, shared the lead in the $60,000 Cleveland Open Bowling Tournament today after averaging 235 for 12 games.

Glenn, of Los Angeles, seeking his first Professional Bowlers Association tournament victory in four years on the tour, had six-game blocks of 1447 and 1373 Wednesday.

Laub, of San Francisco, had sets of 1393 and 1427 to match Glenn's 2820 pinfall total.

Vet Practices Acupuncture

CINCINNATI, Ohio (AP) — Dr. Marvin J. Cain has transferred the ancient Chinese healing art of acupuncture from humans to horses.

"It's very effective," said the Cincinnati veterinarian and horse owner. He has put three race horses, considered hopeless cases, back on the track, and needed a high-bred mare out of a sling and into a normal pregnancy with acupuncture.

East Stars Down West In ABA Tilt

NORFOLK, Va. (AP) — Artis Gilmore, Kentucky's tree-top tall center, often has been accused of not playing up to his potential and "doggin it" during his brief American Basketball Association career.

Statistics would tend to bear out that criticism, since the 7-foot-2 pivot man's figures have dwindled steadily in each of his three seasons with the Colonels. Gilmore, meanwhile, continually has denied the charges — and Wednesday night he added emphasis to his claim, spearheading the East to a 128-112 victory over the West in the seventh annual ABA All-Star game. The 24-year-old center was named the game's most valuable player after scoring 18 points, leading the East with 13 rebounds and topping both teams in blocked shots with four.

Babe McCarthy, the East coach and Gilmore's coach during the regular season, pointed to the towering youngster as the difference in the game.

Julius Erving of New York agreed with McCarthy. "Artis did it all," said Erving.

Gilmore, the ABA's Rookie of the Year and Most Valuable Player in the 1971-72 season, was more excited about the three boats he received for being voted the game's outstanding player. "I love scuba diving," he explained. "I'm really good at it, and I'll probably take the boats to Florida with me in the summer and do some scuba diving."

The East's victory and Gilmore's selection as the MVP overshadowed a glittering performance by Swen Nater of San Antonio. The 6-11 Nater, who was understudy to Bill Walton, UCLA's two-time All-American and Player of the Year, scored 29 points and grabbed 22 rebounds, both game-high figures, in 28 minutes.

Nater set four All-Star game records, including most rebounds (22), most offensive rebounds (13), most two-point field goals (13) and most two-point field goals attempted (24).

Kosco, 32, joined the Reds last year after a trade and hit .280 as a utility player.

Geronimo, 25, slumped to a .210 batting average from .275 the season before as a result of a shoulder injury suffered while playing winter ball.

Winners Named In Y Contest

Winners have been announced in the YMCA and Chillicothe Optimist Club fifth annual Pass, Shoot and Dribble contest held Saturday at the local Y.

First place winners were: Ben Posey, age 13; Carey Dean, 12; Mike Whitten, 11; James Hart, 15; Donald Justus, 9; and Chris Plescia, 8.

Second place finishers were: Rod Brungs, age 13; Jimmy Teets, 12; Rusty Sturgell, 11; Todd Hart, 10; Barry Sealock, 9; and Todd Justus, 8.

Michael Whitten was high scorer in the event with a total of 148 points.

First and second place finishers in the local contest will compete in the Chillicothe District finals at the VA Hospital in February.

Winners of the Chillicothe District will compete in the District finals, later in February, at Bexley Junior High School. The state finals will be held at Zanesville in March.

Glenn And Laub Lead Tourney

CLEVELAND, Ohio (AP) — Dale Glenn and Larry Laub, a pair of Californians, shared the lead in the $60,000 Cleveland Open Bowling Tournament today after averaging 235 for 12 games.

Glenn, of Los Angeles, seeking his first Professional Bowlers Association tournament victory in four years on the tour, had six-game blocks of 1447 and 1373 Wednesday.

Laub, of San Francisco, had sets of 1393 and 1427 to match Glenn's 2820 pinfall total.

Vet Practices Acupuncture

CINCINNATI, Ohio (AP) — Dr. Marvin J. Cain has transferred the ancient Chinese healing art of acupuncture from humans to horses.

"It's very effective," said the Cincinnati veterinarian and horse owner.

He has put three race horses, considered hopeless cases, back on the track, and needed a high-bred mare out of a sling and into a normal pregnancy with acupuncture.

East Stars Down West In ABA Tilt

NORFOLK, Va. (AP) — Artis Gilmore, Kentucky's tree-top tall center, often has been accused of not playing up to his potential and "doggin it" during his brief American Basketball Association career.

Statistics would tend to bear out that criticism, since the 7-foot-2 pivot man's figures have dwindled steadily in each of his three seasons with the Colonels. Gilmore, meanwhile, continually has denied the charges — and Wednesday night he added emphasis to his claim, spearheading the East to a 128-112 victory over the West in the seventh annual ABA All-Star game. The 24-year-old center was named the game's most valuable player after scoring 18 points, leading the East with 13 rebounds and topping both teams in blocked shots with four.

Babe McCarthy, the East coach and Gilmore's coach during the regular season, pointed to the towering youngster as the difference in the game.

Julius Erving of New York agreed with McCarthy. "Artis did it all," said Erving.

Gilmore, the ABA's Rookie of the Year and Most Valuable Player in the 1971-72 season, was more excited about the three boats he received for being voted the game's outstanding player. "I love scuba diving," he explained. "I'm really good at it, and I'll probably take the boats to Florida with me in the summer and do some scuba diving."

The East's victory and Gilmore's selection as the MVP overshadowed a glittering performance by Swen Nater of San Antonio. The 6-11 Nater, who was understudy to Bill Walton, UCLA's two-time All-American and Player of the Year, scored 29 points and grabbed 22 rebounds, both game-high figures, in 28 minutes.

Nater set four All-Star game records, including most rebounds (22), most offensive rebounds (13), most two-point field goals (13) and most two-point field goals attempted (24).

Grid Draft Ends; Few Surprises

NEW YORK (AP) — Here were the 26 National Football League clubs, staggering their way through the 17th and final round of their marathon two-day draft session. All of the top prospects were long gone and it was the perfect time for a little paternal pride.

But football is a business with no room for family fun for Washington Coach George Allen, who annually shuns draft choices for proven veterans. So instead of indulging himself by picking his quarterback son, George Jr., of Virginia, on the final round, Allen made another draft choice deal, handing off the choice to Baltimore.

In the last round trade, Allen swapped his final 1974 choice and running back George Nock to the Colts for guard Corny Johnson and Baltimore's final choice in the 1975 draft. What Allen wants with that pick wasn't immediately clear.

It was the fourth time in the draft that Allen had traded draft selections for veteran talent. On Tuesday, Washington swapped three picks to San Diego for guard Walt Sweeney. Then Allen struck three times on Wednesday, swapping a ninth-round choice to Los Angeles for wide receiver Joe Sweet, and a 12th-round pick to Baltimore for linebacker Ed Mooney, before completing his final-round swap with the Colts. Allen finished the draft with only 11 picks.

The draft dragged through 22 hours, six minutes with 442 players chosen and was in stark contrast to the crisp six-round draft held in less than two hours by the fledgling World Football League last week.

Three of the players picked in the NFL draft, running backs Kermit Johnson of Southern California and James McAlister of UCLA, and offensive tackle Booker Brown of USC, were signed on the eve of the NFL grab bag by the new league's Southern California club — but that didn't scare off the NFL. McAlister went to Oakland and Brown to Houston on the sixth round and the San Francisco

Ali Makes $2.6 Million For Fight

NEW YORK (AP) — Muhammad Ali's victory over Joe Frazier, which the winner said saved boxing's life, was worth $2.6 million to Ali. His next transfusion to the sport could be worth $5 million.

Five million dollars — that's what promoter Bob Arum said Ali and world heavyweight champion George Foreman each could earn for fighting each other.

Arum, the president of Top Rank, Inc., and Ali's attorney said at a Tuesday news conference, about 12 hours after Ali's decision win over Frazier, said he could not be specific about an Ali-Foreman match.

"There'll be a fight when George Foreman tells us he wants to fight," said Arum.

"If he wants a shot, I'll give him one," said Ali, the self-proclaimed heavyweight champion of the people.

There is little doubt that Ali and Foreman will meet. Some insiders think it might even be this year despite the tax problems it could cause. However, Ali is 32 years old, while Foreman is only 24, and time is running out on Ali.

A source close to Arum mentioned Madison Square Garden as the likely site.

Eddie Pearce of Tampa, Fla., is the youngest of 23 golfers who passed their PGA qualifying in October. He will be 22 next March 16. Pearce was second in the 1971 U.S. Amateur championship.

49ers took Johnson on the seventh round.

Art Johnson, assistant to 49er President Lou Spadia, explained the logic of drafting players already signed by the other league, saying: "We're thinking of the future. There's always an end to a contract."

When the draft was over, 249 offensive players had been chosen compared to 193 defensive players with 77 running backs making that the favorite position in the draft. Only 18 quarterbacks were picked, none on the first two rounds.

There were 47 wide receivers picked including Baltimore's last round choice of Massachusetts' Tim Berra, son of baseball Hall of Famer Yogi Berra. UCLA had 12 players picked, most of any school.

OU-Chillicothe Draws Bye

CHILLICOTHE, Ohio (AP)— Top-seeded Ohio University-Chillicothe Branch, with a 20-1 record, has drawn the only opening round bye of the eighth annual Ohio Regional Campus Basketball Tournament.

The event, involving 15 teams, will be played Feb. 14-16 with OU-Chillicothe serving as the host.

First round pairings for Thursday, Feb. 14:

Whole Families Get Good Grades

GARDEN CITY, N.Y. (AP) — A Nassau Community College survey indicates that the family which studies together gets good grades together. Dr. Robert Gwydir, vice president for academic affairs, observes that "academic families usually have good academic averages."

He considers that family enrollments at the Garden City campus are "getting down to the bedrock of community service." About 1,725 students are involved in these family enrollments.

Future Of Walleyes Being Decided Soon

By JIM DAUBEL
The Associated Press

The future of Lake Erie's most publicized game fish may be strongly influenced by two unrelated developments expected within months.

Intensive commercial exploitation and pollution have severely depleted walleye populations in the troubled lake.

Biologists generally agree that the species may be on the ropes. A pending court decision and reaction to a governor's task force report are certain to have major impact on the walleye's long struggle for survival.

The legal challenge began in January, 1972, when the Ohio Division of Wildlife imposed a five-year moratorium on commercial netting of walleyes.

The closure was ordered to give fisheries biologists time to conduct long-overdue research on walleyes, which in the late 1960s took a nosedive toward extinction.

Some commercial fishermen dispute the decline in walleye populations, and one netter has gone to court seeking to void the moratorium.

A hearing on the challenge is scheduled for March in Lucas County. Ironically, there are growing indications that a legal victory could boomerang on the netters.

A move by sportsmen have been under way for some time to place the walleye on the sport fishing list, thereby outlawing commercial harvest for sale of the species permanently.

But influential sportsmen's groups around Ohio are hinting now that if the moratorium is removed they will pull out all the stops in trying to get the walleye added to the sport list.

The report and proposed legislation drafted by the Governor's Task Force on Lake Erie Fisheries is expected to be finalized next month.

Known to be among the strongest recommendations of the 18-member group of experts will be adoption by Ohio of a quota system of managing Lake Erie fish stocks.

Simply stated, under a quota system biologists would estimate fish populations in Lake Erie and regulate harvests by sport and commercial fishermen lake-wide to protect each species.

Acceptance of quota management by the Gilligan Administration and the General Assembly is seen as the key to the best available protection for walleyes and other endangered Lake Erie species.

Urge Slowdown On Obscenity Law

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP)— Ohio's lawmakers are being asked to slow down a bit on proposed legislation that would put obscenity problems in the hands of local officials.

The request was made Tuesday night by the National Association of Theater Owners of Ohio and a spokesman for public libraries, along with a group of private citizens.

Robert N. Shamansky of Columbus, an attorney representing the theater owners, said the recent acceptance by the U.S. Supreme Court of a case involving the film, "Carnal Knowledge," is one reason for caution. Georgia courts ruled the film obscene.

The high court agreed to hear the case, he said, because last year's obscenity decision by the court "is not working." That decision said, in effect, that questions dealing with obscenity should be left in the hands of local law enforcement officials and local courts. Shamansky said the "Carnal Knowledge" case, which originated in Albany, Ga., probably will result in further direction by the U.S. Court. "The federal law now is in doubt in just a few months," the attorney said.

Shamansky and others testified before the House Judiciary Committee on legislation by Rep. Donna Pope, R-12 Parma, to conform Ohio statutes with the 1973 decision.

Mrs. Pope actually introduced two bills, one that would define a "municipal corporation" for the purposes of the law, and permit officials to confiscate and destroy obscene materials after they were judged obscene.

She backed that bill up with another, more vague in language, that states simply that local officials have the right to set "community standards" with regard to obscenity. The latter bill does not define "community standards."

Shamansky opposed the first Pope bill on grounds it would be "impossible" to allow various communities within Cuyahoga County, for instance, to have individual procedures. "There are 58 different municipalities in Cuyahoga County, and there could be 58 different interpretations," he argued.

Spokesmen for the Ohio State Library Association also urged caution pending the upcoming Supreme Court case, and asked for a set of statewide standards on obscenity, rather than local control.

Mrs. Pope also has introduced a bill to reinstate penalties for public nudity in Ohio's statutes. The penalties inadvertently were omitted with revision of Ohio's Criminal Code last year, she said.

Spassky Wins Chess Match

SAN JUAN, P.R. (AP) — Former world chess champion Boris Spassky has cleared another hurdle on the comeback road toward a rematch with Bobby Fischer next year.

Spassky advanced Tuesday to the semifinals of the world chess championship eliminations. He won the third victory of his quarterfinal match with American champion Robert Byrne, knocking Byrne out of the competition.

Spassky, the first quarterfinalist to advance to the semifinals, needed only six out of a possible 16 games to take the match. He also won the third and fourth games. The other three ended in draws.

In the semifinals in April, Spassky will meet the winner of the quarterfinal match in Moscow between two other Soviet grandmasters, Anatoly Karpov and Lev Polugaevsky. Karpov is leading that match 1-0 and plays his sixth game with Polugaevsky today.

Urge Slowdown
On Obscenity Law

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP)— Ohio's lawmakers are being asked to slow down a bit on proposed legislation that would put obscenity problems in the hands of local officials.

The request was made Tuesday night by the National Association of Theater Owners of Ohio and a spokesman for public libraries, along with a group of private citizens.

Robert N. Shamansky of Columbus, an attorney representing the theater owners, said the recent acceptance by the U.S. Supreme Court of a case involving the film, "Carnal Knowledge," is one reason for caution. Georgia courts ruled the film obscene.

The high court agreed to hear the case, he said, because last year's obscenity decision by the court "is not working." That decision said, in effect, that questions dealing with obscenity should be left in the hands of local law enforcement officials and local courts. Shamansky said the "Carnal Knowledge" case, which originated in Albany, Ga., probably will result in further direction by the U.S. Court. "The federal law now is in doubt in just a few months," the attorney said. Shamansky and others testified before the House Judiciary Committee on legislation by Rep. Donna Pope, R-12 Parma, to conform Ohio statutes with the 1973 decision.

Mrs. Pope actually introduced two bills, one that would define a "municipal corporation" for the purposes of the law, and permit officials to confiscate and destroy obscene materials after they were judged obscene.

She backed that bill up with another, more vague in language, that states simply that local officials have the right to set "community standards" with regard to obscenity. The latter bill does not define "community standards."

Shamansky opposed the first Pope bill on grounds it would be "impossible" to allow various communities within Cuyahoga County, for instance, to have individual procedures. "There are 58 different municipalities in Cuyahoga County, and there could be 58 different interpretations," he argued.

Spokesmen for the Ohio State Library Association also urged caution pending the upcoming Supreme Court case, and asked for a set of statewide standards on obscenity, rather than local control.

Mrs. Pope also has introduced a bill to reinstate penalties for public nudity in Ohio's statutes. The penalties inadvertently were omitted with revision of Ohio's Criminal Code last year, she said.

THE DODGE BOYS

By FRANCIS DRAKE

Look in the section in which your birthday comes and find what your outlook is, according to the stars.

FOR FRIDAY

ARIES (Mar. 21 to Apr. 20): If you're going to accomplish anything now, it will take hard work and stick-to-itiveness. Intentions alone will not suffice. Don the mantle of the go-getter and go after objectives with determination.

TAURUS (Apr. to May 21): Face realities, and correct deficiencies in your schedule as promptly as possible. But don't jump to hasty conclusions. A thorough study of details needed.

GEMINI (May 22 to June 21): Study new offerings. Some will be suitable for you, others not very helpful. Gains indicated through use of your innate good judgment and progressive ideas.

CANCER (June 22 to July 23): Indicated now: Fine opportunities for advancing your status, new means toward the attainment of worthwhile objectives. Stress discretion and caution, however.

LEO (July 24 to Aug. 23): Unusual tact needed here — in domestic, social and business circles. Don't "rock the boat" or stir up dissension — only too easily done now, if you are not alert.

VIRGO (Aug. 24 to Sept. 23): Tendencies to avoid now: Undue suspicion of others, groundless fears, a desire to invade the privacy of associates. Concentrate on your own activities.

LIBRA (Sept. 24 to Oct. 23): Gains indicated from past good efforts. But don't rest on your laurels. Plan to benefit by the procedures which proved so profitable in the past.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24 to Nov. 23): You may have more to manage and keep in line than you anticipate now, but you can handle all. Get in there and pitch — with your usual competence.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23 to Dec. 21): Jupiter influences continue to stimulate movement, ideas for expansion. Get at basics, clearly understood ideas for planning and action.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20): Others may be overly aggressive now. YOU maintain stability, good judgment. Stress your keen sense of the appropriate.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19): You may find some real values in seemingly unimportant offerings. Don't dismiss lightly. Neither make changes in matters now running smoothly.

PISCES (Feb. 20 to Mar. 20): In dealings with others, don't resort to brevity or abruptness of speech when full explanations are truly needed. Do your best to really "communicate."

YOU BORN TODAY: Your keyword is AMBITION. Little discourages you — especially if you have the confidence of family, co-workers, superiors. Normally practical, you are able to take advantage of opportunity — sometimes seeing it before others do. Avoid useless, unhappy friction in relationships. Extremely versatile, you could succeed as a writer, painter, musician, fashion designer or interior decorator. Birthdate of: Victor Herbert, Amer. composer.

Hockey Coach Goes After Fan

CLEVELAND (AP)—Houston Aeros Coach Bill Dineen, who charged up into the stands to take on an "abusive" fan, was apologetic over the incident Wednesday night.

"I've never done anything like that before," said Dineen. "But I reached the point where I couldn't take it any more. The fans have a right to cheer, but this guy became too abusive."

The Aeros were well on their way to a 5-1 defeat at the hands of the Cleveland Crusaders in the World Hockey Association game when Dineen raced up into the stands after hearing the fan shout something at the Houston bench.

Miami Selects 4 More Coaches

OXFORD, Ohio (AP)—Four new assistants were named at Miami University Wednesday, completing a new coaching staff of seven for recently-named Coach Dick Crum.

Athletic Director Richard Shrider said the four were: Ernie Horning, a teacher at Riverside High School in Painesville, Ohio; Jim Tressler, assistant coach at Mount Union College; Mickey Jackson, assistant at Marshall and Jim Roush, a Miami graduate assistant now completing military duty.

The first school of the arts and crafts in Canada was founded at Cap Tourmente, Quebec, in 1668.

At the end of 1970, Canadians owned $121 billion of life insurance.

Views On Television

NEW YORK (AP) — One tends to be suspicious when a network, a sponsor and a publicity firm all start heavy drum-beating for a TV special a full month before it airs.

You get the feeling they're trying to salvage a bad, expensive project with massive puffery.

But our suspicions were wrong in the case of "The Autobiography of Miss Jane Pittman," a two-hour drama CBS-TV is broadcasting tonight. This is a fine show and you ought to see it.

It's a beautifully told tale of a Southern black woman's 110 years of life. It starts with her freedom from slavery at the close of the Civil War and ends with her tottering but defiant steps into the start of the new war for civil rights in 1962.

Now, "profoundly moving" is a tattered cliché those in the TV review racket use when a serious show doesn't put them to sleep in 10 minutes.

But it's the only description that seems to fit this production, filmed in and around Baton Rouge, La., based on a 1971 novel by Ernest J. Gaines and adapted for television by Tracy Keenan Wynn.

"Miss Jane," from age 22 to 110, is brilliantly portrayed by Cicely Tyson, who again displays the incredible range of talent that won her both wide acclaim and an Academy Award nomination last year for the movie "Sounder."

The story of the proud, spunky woman she plays is told through a simple, effective device—memories recalled in her age-cracked voice for an eager-to-please young white reporter from the North, sent by his magazine to profile the life of this former slave woman.

The reporter—Michael Murphy—arrives at a time black activists, called "agitators" on the local radio, are seeking Miss Jane's support in the opening wave of civil rights demonstrations that swept the South in the early 1960s.

"Do you remember getting your freedom?" he gently asks her.

It sets the stage for a unique—for whites—history lesson about 97 years of terror and kindness, hatred and love, pride and frightened servility, brave intelligence and whiterobed ignorance.

Call it the black experience if you will. By whatever title, this is a superb drama flawed only occasionally by snatches of hokey dialogue in some segments dealing with the present.

The direction by John Korte is unobtrusive and effectively helps the story along without flash or fancy angles.

Kingdom Day is celebrated on the Caribbean Island of Aruba on Dec. 15. Festivities mark the date in 1954 when the Netherlands Antilles became semi-autonomous and an equal partner, along with Holland and Surinam, in the Kingdom of the Netherlands.

Your Horoscope Television Schedule

By FRANCIS DRAKE

Look in the section in which your birthday comes and find what your outlook is, according to the stars.

FOR FRIDAY
ARIES (Mar. 21 to Apr. 20): If you're going to accomplish anything now, it will take hard work and stick-to-itiveness. Intentions alone will not suffice. Don the mantle of the go-getter and go after objectives with determination.

TAURUS (Apr. to May 21): Face realities, and correct deficiencies in your schedule as promptly as possible. But don't jump to hasty conclusions. A thorough study of details needed.

GEMINI (May 22 to June 21): Study new offerings. Some will be suitable for you, others not very helpful. Gains indicated through use of your innate good judgment and progressive ideas.

CANCER (June 22 to July 23): Indicated now: Fine opportunities for advancing your status, new means toward the attainment of worthwhile objectives. Stress discretion and caution, however.

LEO (July 24 to Aug. 23): Unusual tact needed here—in domestic, social and business circles. Don't "rock the boat" or stir up dissension—only too easily done now, if you are not alert.

VIRGO (Aug. 24 to Sept. 23): Tendencies to avoid now: Undue suspicion of others, groundless fears, a desire to invade the privacy of associates. Concentrate on your own activities.

LIBRA (Sept. 24 to Oct. 23): Gains indicated from past good efforts. But don't rest on your laurels. Plan to benefit by the procedures which proved so profitable in the past.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24 to Nov. 23): You may have more to manage and keep in line than you anticipate now, but you can handle all. Get in there and pitch—with your usual competence.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23 to Dec. 21): Jupiter influences continue to stimulate movement, ideas for expansion. Get at basics, clearly understood ideas for planning and action.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20): Others may be overly aggressive now. YOU maintain stability, good judgment. Stress your keen sense of the appropriate.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19): You may find some real values in seemingly unimportant offerings. Don't dismiss lightly. Neither make changes in matters now running smoothly.

PISCES (Feb. 20 to Mar. 20): In dealings with others, don't resort to brevity or abruptness of speech when full explanations are truly needed. Do your best to really "communicate."

YOU BORN TODAY: Your keyword is AMBITION. Little discourages you—especially if you have the confidence of family, co-workers, superiors. Normally practical, you are able to take advantage of opportunity—sometimes seeing it before others do. Avoid useless, unhappy friction in relationships. Extremely versatile, you could succeed as a writer, painter, musician, fashion designer or interior decorator. Birthdate of: Victor Herbert, Amer. composer.

Hockey Coach

Goes After Fan

CLEVELAND (AP)—Houston Aeros Coach Bill Dineen, who charged up into the stands to take on an "abusive" fan, was apologetic over the incident Wednesday night.

"I've never done anything like that before," said Dineen. "But I reached the point where I couldn't take it any more. 'The fans have a right to cheer, but this guy became too abusive.'"

The Aeros were well on their way to a 5-1 defeat at the hands of the Cleveland Crusaders in the World Hockey Association game when Dineen raced up into the stands after hearing the fan shout something at the Houston bench.

Miami Selects

4 More Coaches

OXFORD, Ohio (AP)—Four new assistants were named at Miami University Wednesday, completing a new coaching staff of seven for recently-named Coach Dick Crum.

Athletic Director Richard Shriver said the four were: Ernie Horning, a teacher at Riverside High School in Painesville, Ohio; Jim Tressler, assistant coach at Mount Union College; Mickey Jackson, assistant at Marshall and Jim Roush, a Miami graduate assistant now completing military duty.

The first school of the arts and crafts in Canada was founded at Cap Tourmente, Quebec, in 1668.

At the end of 1970, Canadians owned $121 billion of life insurance.

President Pledges No Recession

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Nixon has told Congress to expect economic stagnation, increased unemployment and high inflation in 1974, but he said there will be no recession.

His no-recession pledge, however, did not promise an economic bed of roses but only a choice of thorns: if necessary, he said, he would speed up federal spending and stimulate still more inflation, rather than let a tight-fisted anti-inflation policy destroy too many jobs.

In his annual State of the Union message on Wednesday night, Nixon said inflation and the energy crisis were combining to worsen the nation's economic outlook and he warned the day of bargain-priced energy was over.

Broadcasting nationwide a short-tened version of his message, Nixon publicly scorned "the perennial prophets of gloom, telling us now that ... America may be headed for a recession."

"Well, let me speak to that issue head-on," he said. "There will be no recession in the United States of America."

"Primarily due to our energy crisis, our economy is passing through a difficult period, but I pledge to you tonight that the full powers of this government will be used to keep America's economy producing and to protect the jobs of America's workers."

He elaborated in the complete printed text of the message, which said "a slowdown in economic growth is inevitable in 1974."

"During the early part of this year output will rise little, if at all, unemployment will rise somewhat and inflation will be high," the message said.

Nixon said he will propose a fiscal 1975 budget of $304.4 billion, a $29.7 billion increase over fiscal 1974, which "will support the economy, resisting a major slowdown, but ... will not provide a degree of stimulation that could accelerate inflation."

Nixon said he had assurances of a forthcoming meeting among Arab oil-producing nations to discuss lifting their embargo against oil shipments to the United States which have, so far, reduced U.S. oil imports by about 2 million barrels a day.

"If the embargo is lifted," Nixon said, "this will ease the crisis, but it will not mean an end to the energy shortage in America. Voluntary conservation will continue to be necessary."

Nixon said the nation will continue to face "real challenges — and genuine shortages — in the months and years immediately ahead ... We must change our patterns of energy consumption and production, we must press forward with the development of reliable new energy sources, and we must adjust to the fact that the age of unlimited supplies of cheap energy is ended."

He also urged Congress to make his proposed energy emergency legislation its first priority for action. Large increases in federal spending for energy research will be an important element in his fiscal 1975 budget, Nixon said.

Samuel Goldwyn Dies; Film Giant

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Samuel Goldwyn, the colorful Polish immigrant who helped found the American movie industry and became its most independent producer, died early today at 91.

The cause of death was not immediately known, but Goldwyn had been hospitalized for an undisclosed ailment relating to age earlier this month.

Goldwyn's motion pictures included "Best Years of Our Lives," "Wuthering Heights," "Hans Christian Andersen," "Guys and Dolls," "Porgy and Bess," and "The Pride of the Yankees."

Goldwyn had been secluded in his Beverly Hills mansion since 1967, when he suffered a stroke. His only public appearance was on March 27, 1971, when President Nixon came to the Goldwyn home to present the producer with the Medal of Freedom, the nation's highest civilian honor.

The President praised Goldwyn for making films that were entertaining, exciting, great box office but not square "and not dirty."

His career spanned more than half a century since the time in 1913 when he and the late Cecil B. De Mille and Jessé L. Lasky made the first feature length film, "The Squaw Man," in a rented barn in a lemon grove.

Goldwyn was one of the founders of Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer in 1923-24.

A rugged individualist, he was a fiercely competitive independent producer for all but 10 of those years, a man who didn't want and didn't have a board of directors because "it takes too long to explain things to them."

His wife, one-time Broadway actress Frances Howard, whom he married in 1925, shared the important decisions Goldwyn made and they had a "his and hers" arrangement for many years at the Goldwyn Studios. Her small office adjoined his tastefully decorated one.

Their son, Samuel Jr., 43, followed his father into the business, becoming a director and producer.

Temperatures Thursday afternoon are forecast to drop into the 30s and from 10 to 15 degrees northwest to the mid 20s southeast tonight. Highs on Friday are forecast in the upper 20s and low 30s north to the 30s and low 40s south.

Jap Radicals Blow Oil Tank In Singapore

SINGAPORE (AP) — Four Japanese radicals blew up an oil tank at the Shell refinery off Singapore today, and three of them took six hostages aboard a ship in Singapore harbor, officials said.

The terrorists threatened to kill themselves and their hostages unless they were given safe passage from the island state, police said.

Marine police intercepted the ship and were reported to have it surrounded in the harbor's eastern anchorage.

Police said the fourth radical remained on the island of Pulau Bukom, the Shell refining center.

The four Japanese said they were members of the Japanese Red Army, the most radical of the Japanese student organizations.

The Japanese Embassy reported that the three radicals aboard the ship made a ship-to-shore telephone call to the embassy and demanded that Ambassador Tokichiro Uemoto come out to arrange for their departure by plane.

Police said a fire caused by the oil tank explosion had been put out and nobody was hurt.

After the noon-time explosion, three of the Japanese seized the ferry boat Laju which ferries Shell workers between Singapore and Pulau Bukom. A government spokesman said the terrorists were armed with explosives.

An army helicopter pursued the terrorist still on Pulau Bukom. He was believed armed with explosives also.

Government sources said Ambassador Uemoto got in touch with Prime Minister Kakuei Tanaka in Tokyo, and Tanaka instructed him to negotiate with the radicals. The ambassador also conferred with Prime Minister Lee Kuan Yew of Singapore before going to the eastern anchorage to meet with the terrorists.

The sources said a Japan Airlines plane had been asked to stand by to fly the Japanese out of Singapore if that could be arranged.

In Tokyo, Chief Cabinet Secretary Susumu Nakaido expressed regret the Red Army was involved. He said the ambassador had been instructed to assist Prime Minister Lee in every way possible to resolve the incident.

The Red Army has been in the news most in recent years for the activities of some of its members on behalf of the Palestinian guerrillas.

About 70 of the organization's members are reported to have joined forces with the guerrillas.

Three of these carried out the massacre at Israel's international airport in 1972 in which two of the terrorists and 24 other persons were killed and more than 70 persons wounded. The third terrorist in that attack, Kozo Okamoto, is serving a life sentence in an Israeli prison.

Blame Government For Oil Shortage

NEW YORK (AP) — A group of leading university economists says government policies here and abroad, rather than any shortage of oil, are responsible for current problems with the supply of petroleum products.

The economists also predicted that in four to five years oil might be a "glut" on the world market as higher prices bring greater production.

The group included Kenneth J. Arrow of Harvard University, cowinner of the 1972 Nobel Prize for economics, and professors from several other universities. It met for discussions Jan. 10 at a forum sponsored by the Conference Board, an independent economic research organization.

In releasing a report Wednesday on the forum, the Conference Board said the group's observations and conclusions "are partly based on informed opinion and judgment" rather than actual statistics.

The economists said they believe the United States should have no oil shortfall in the first half of the year as a result of restraints on demand for petroleum products.

But they added that some areas of the nation, such as the Northeast, may continue to have shortages, while others may have an overabundance.

The economists said domestic price controls had contributed to the supply problems. They also indicated that they believed the Arab oil boycott has been only a half-hearted effort.

They said the Arabs were actually breaking their own boycott and leaking supplies to this country through such intermediaries as Romania.

The economists also opposed further interference by the federal government in pricing or distribution of oil.

However, the participants said that the government can help in a more equitable distribution of supplies throughout the nation by examining what they described as antitrust problems arising in current distribution practices.

County To Receive Criminal Subsidy

Pickaway County will receive $273.60 in the distribution of $52,986.42 in criminal costs subsidies for December according to State Auditor Joseph T. Ferguson.

The state pays on a monthly basis for the successful prosecution and imprisonment of indigent persons convicted of felony crimes under the criminal cost subsidy program. The money is appropriated by the legislature to the Auditor's office for this purpose.

President Pledges No Recession

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Nixon has told Congress to expect economic stagnation, increased unemployment and high inflation in 1974, but he said there will be no recession.

His no-recession pledge, however, did not promise an economic bed of roses but only a choice of thorns: if necessary, he said, he would speed up federal spending and stimulate still more inflation, rather than let a tight-fisted anti-inflation policy destroy too many jobs.

In his annual State of the Union message on Wednesday night, Nixon said inflation and the energy crisis were combining to worsen the nation's economic outlook and he warned the day of bargain-priced energy was over.

Jap Radicals Blow Oil Tank In Singapore

SINGAPORE (AP) — Four Japanese radicals blew up an oil tank at the Shell refinery off Singapore today, and three of them took six hostages aboard a ship in Singapore harbor, officials said.

The terrorists threatened to kill themselves and their hostages unless they were given safe passage from the island state, police said.

Marine police intercepted the ship and were reported to have it surrounded in the harbor's eastern anchorage.

Police said the fourth radical remained on the island of Pulau Bukom, the Shell refining center.

The four Japanese said they were members of the Japanese Red Army, the most radical of the Japanese student organizations.

The Japanese Embassy reported that the three radicals aboard the ship made a ship-to-shore telephone call to the embassy and demanded that Ambassador Tokichiro Uomoto come out to arrange for their departure by plane.

Police said a fire caused by the oil tank explosion had been put out and nobody was hurt.

After the noon-time explosion, three of the Japanese seized the ferry boat Laju which ferries Shell workers between Singapore and Pulau Bukom. A government spokesman said the terrorists were armed with explosives.

An army helicopter pursued the terrorist still on Pulau Bukom. He was believed armed with explosives also.

Government sources said Ambassador Uomoto got in touch with Prime Minister Kakuei Tanaka in Tokyo, and Tanaka instructed him to negotiate with the radicals. The ambassador also conferred with Prime Minister Lee Kuan Yew of Singapore before going to the eastern anchorage to meet with the terrorists.

The sources said a Japan Airlines plane had been asked to stand by to fly the Japanese out of Singapore if that could be arranged.

In Tokyo, Chief Cabinet Secretary Susumu Nakaido expressed regret the Red Army was involved. He said the ambassador had been instructed to assist Prime Minister Lee in every way possible to resolve the incident.

The Red Army has been in the news most in recent years for the activities of some of its members on behalf of the Palestinian guerrillas.

About 70 of the organization's members are reported to have joined forces with the guerrillas.

Three of these carried out the massacre at Israel's international airport in 1972 in which two of the terrorists and 24 other persons were killed and more than 70 persons wounded. The third terrorist in that attack, Kozo Okamoto, is serving a life sentence in an Israeli prison.

Blame Government For Oil Shortage

NEW YORK (AP) — A group of leading university economists says government policies here and abroad, rather than any shortage of oil, are responsible for current problems with the supply of petroleum products.

The economists also predicted that in four to five years oil might be a "glut" on the world market as higher prices bring greater production.

The group included Kenneth J. Arrow of Harvard University, co-winner of the 1972 Nobel Prize for economics, and professors from several other universities. It met for discussions Jan. 10 at a forum sponsored by the Conference Board, an independent economic research organization.

In releasing a report Wednesday on the forum, the Conference Board said the group's observations and conclusions "are partly based on informed opinion and judgment" rather than actual statistics.

The economists said they believe the United States should have no oil shortfall in the first half of the year as a result of restraints on demand for petroleum products.

But they added that some areas of the nation, such as the Northeast, may continue to have shortages, while others may have an overabundance.

The economists said domestic price controls had contributed to the supply problems. They also indicated that they believed the Arab oil boycott has been only a half-hearted effort.

They said the Arabs were actually breaking their own boycott and leaking supplies to this country through such intermediaries as Romania.

The economists also opposed further interference by the federal government in pricing or distribution of oil.

However, the participants said that the government can help in a more equitable distribution of supplies throughout the nation by examining what they described as antitrust problems arising in current distribution practices.

Pickaway County will receive $273.60 in the distribution of $52,986.42 in criminal costs subsidies for December according to State Auditor Joseph T. Ferguson.

The state pays on a monthly basis for the successful prosecution and imprisonment of indigent persons convicted of felony crimes under the criminal cost subsidy program. The money is appropriated by the legislature to the Auditor's office for this purpose.

PTB Meeting Time Is Changed

Nicholas Drive Parent Teacher Boosters has changed its meeting time to 7 p.m. Tuesday at the school.

tened version of his message, Nixon publicly scorned "the perennial prophets of gloom, telling us now that ... America may be headed for a recession."

"Well, let me speak to that issue head-on," he said. "There will be no recession in the United States of America."

"Primarily due to our energy crisis, our economy is passing through a difficult period, but I pledge to you tonight that the full powers of this government will be used to keep America's economy producing and to protect the jobs of America's workers."

He elaborated in the complete printed text of the message, which said "a slowdown in economic growth is inevitable in 1974."

"During the early part of this year output will rise little, if at all, unemployment will rise somewhat and inflation will be high," the message said.

Nixon said he will propose a fiscal 1975 budget of $304.4 billion, a $29.7 billion increase over fiscal 1974, which "will support the economy, resisting a major slowdown, but ... will not provide a degree of stimulation that could accelerate inflation."

Nixon said he had assurances of a forthcoming meeting among Arab oil-producing nations to discuss lifting their embargo against oil shipments to the United States which have, so far, reduced U.S. oil imports by about 2 million barrels a day.

"If the embargo is lifted," Nixon said, "this will ease the crisis, but it will not mean an end to the energy shortage in America. Voluntary conservation will continue to be necessary."

Nixon said the nation will continue to face "real challenges — and genuine shortages — in the months and years immediately ahead ... We must change our patterns of energy consumption and production, we must press forward with the development of reliable new energy sources, and we must adjust to the fact that the age of unlimited supplies of cheap energy is ended."

He also urged Congress to make his proposed energy emergency legislation its first priority for action. Large increases in federal spending for energy research will be an important element in his fiscal 1975 budget, Nixon said.

Samuel Goldwyn Dies; Film Giant

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Samuel Goldwyn, the colorful Polish immigrant who helped found the American movie industry and became its most independent producer, died early today at 91.

The cause of death was not immediately known, but Goldwyn had had been hospitalized for an undisclosed ailment relating to age earlier this month.

Goldwyn's motion pictures included "Best Years of Our Lives," "Wuthering Heights," "Hans Christian Andersen," "Guys and Dolls," "Porgy and Bess," and "The Pride of the Yankees."

Goldwyn had been secluded in his Beverly Hills mansion since 1967, when he suffered a stroke. His only public appearance was on March 27, 1971, when President Nixon came to the Goldwyn home to present the producer with the Medal of Freedom, the nation's highest civilian honor.

Red Cross Youth To Meet Saturday
